

Youngstown and Republic Plan To Reopen Mills

Observers Think Orders Indicate Truce Has Been Reached

OPEN CONFERENCE Bethlehem Cambria Works Closed by Governor Earle

Cleveland.—(AP)—"Little steel" is issued defiant "back-to-work" marching orders today.

With the zero hour set by steel executives for 7 a. m. tomorrow, involving about 24,000 men in the Youngstown area, federal mediators strove desperately in Cleveland to effect a settlement.

Tom Girdler, chairman of Republic Steel corporation, flatly told the federal steel mediation board he would not enter into any contract with the C. I. O.

The strike against so-called "little steel"—Republic, Bethlehem, Inland Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube—entered its twenty-sixth day with the death of a twelfth victim, shot down in the battle between C. I. O. pickets and police at the Republic Steel plant in Youngstown Saturday night. The victim was James Eperjesi, a strike picket.

Cleveland.—(AP)—Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, announced today that he would attempt to re-open the three strike-bound Sheet and Tube plants in the embroiled Youngstown area at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

At the same time Republic Steel corporation announced it would attempt to re-open one of its mills tomorrow morning. Two were killed and 26 injured at the mill Saturday night in a battle between strikers and city police.

The defiant orders to re-open came as strike leaders, headed by John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, entered a conference with federal mediators here in an effort to find a peaceful solution of the Great Lakes steel strike.

Sit-down strikes in Sheet and Tube mills have been threatened by union leaders if there was any back-to-work attempt.

Informal observers believed the re-opening orders may have been issued with advance knowledge of a truce to be reached at the Cleveland conference.

May Appeal to Board
It was believed that conferees may agree to appeal the issue to the national labor relations board, and thence to the supreme court for final decision on the question whether the Wagner act requires signed contracts.

The strike hinges on this point—the refusal of the steel companies to sign contracts.

Significant of that belief were the remarks of Mr. Purnell as he left Youngstown for Cleveland today.

"Why let women and children go hungry on the abstract question that can probably be settled in the court?" he asked.

At Warren, Ohio, Judge Lynn Griffith in Trumbull county common pleas court granted a petition of Republic Steel for an injunction restraining the activities of strike pickets.

Cambria Works Closed
On the Johnstown front of the strike, the great Cambria works of Bethlehem Steel were closed under a martial law proclamation of Governor George H. Earle of Pennsylvania.

Tight-lipped as to plans and hopes of the mediation conference, the steel union leaders and the federal mediation board continued deliberations behind locked doors in a Cleveland hotel suite.

After the conference with C. I. O. chieftains, the mediators planned to confer with heads of the strike-embroiled steel companies—Sheet and Tube, Republic, Bethlehem, and the Inland Steel company.

Headed by Charles P. Taff, the head has as other members Lloyd K. Garrison of the University of Wisconsin, and Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube employs 15,000 to 18,000 men in the Mahoning valley.

Republic Steel employs 6,000 in the plant that has been ordered re-opened. Its back-to-work order also was issued for 7 o'clock a. m.

NAMED PREMIER

Camille Chautemps (above), former premier of France, again is trying to form a cabinet, as the result of the resignation of the Blum government. He was minister of state in the retiring cabinet.

Chautemps Trying To Form Cabinet As Blum Steps Out

Mobile Guards Active in Paris to Prevent Possible Disorders

Paris.—(AP)—Trucks filled with mobile guards rumbled through Paris boulevards to the capital's strategic points today as twice-premier Camille Chautemps attempted to assemble a new cabinet to lead France out of her governmental crisis.

Steel-helmeted guards deployed in front of the senate to prevent any demonstration against the body that overthrew socialist Premier Leon Blum and his people's front government yesterday by refusing to grant decree powers to deal with the financial crisis.

Acting with significant speed, President Albert Lebrun summoned the radical socialist Chautemps to the Elysee palace before dawn and designated him to form a new government.

Chautemps, secretary of state in the retiring cabinet, immediately began a round of conferences with party leaders.

Among his first conferees was Joseph Caillaux, head of the senate finance committee, who led the fight against Blum's decree demands, from whom he apparently sought to determine if there is a possibility of a new cabinet obtaining decree powers to deal with a rapidly emptying treasury.

Chautemps, whose own government fell early in 1934 after the Stavisky scandals, was minister of state in the Blum cabinet, a member of one of the more conservative leftmost parties supporting the coalition.

The ball of the Blum government, which in one year and seventeen days of existence had weathered numerous other crises, was regarded as a lost cause.

Green Concerned Over Reaction to Michigan Strikes

Washington.—(AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to Representative John Luecke, Escanaba, Mich., expressed concern today over the public's reaction to recent Michigan strikes.

Green's letter answered one from Luecke addressed to Green and John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee for Industrial Organization. Luecke had urged the two leaders to unite their organizations and provide "united" leadership for newly organized labor groups. Lewis has not replied.

"Like you, I have been apprehensive over what has been taking place in the C. I. O. organization movement," Green wrote Luecke.

"An evil influence has caused groups of newly organized workers connected with the C. I. O. to follow a destructive policy. As a result, public opinion is turning against them."

Soviet Airmen Resting After Polar Flight

Believe They Have Blazed New Route for Air Transportation

TRAVEL 5,300 MILES

Land at Army Post Field at Vancouver Because Of Bad Weather

Vancouver, Wash.—(AP)—The trans-polar flight that carried three Russian airmen over the top of the world from Moscow opened a new air lane to tomorrow's prosaic commerce, the daring trio said today as they rested here at the end of their epochal adventure.

Only 52 miles short of their goal at Oakland, Calif., the fliers set their huge-winged monoplane down here at 8:22 a. m. yesterday (10:22 a. m. central standard time) after 63 hours and 17 minutes of hazardous flight from the other side of the earth. They took off from Moscow at 7:05 p. m., central standard time, Thursday with 6,000 miles between them and their objective, a large part of it over impossible landing territory that no white man had ever seen before. Their actual flight was about 5,300 miles.

Victors over serious weather difficulties above the barren polar regions, and over trying navigating conditions where meridians of longitude converge and compasses lie, they were cheered of full triumph by low visibility after reaching comparative safety.

Share in Broadcast

Obviously worn from their ordeal but reporting themselves in good condition, the three men of iron rose after a few hours sleep to participate last night in a celebration broadcast during which Russian Ambassador Alexander Troyanovsky acted as interpreter. Earlier the ambassador had said the flight proved the feasibility of trans-polar commercial flying.

The only witnesses to the end of the most hazardous flight in history were some amazed soldiers of the army post here and three university R. O. T. C. students.

The men who made the first trans-polar flight from Russia to the United States were Valeri Chkaloff, pilot, who did not once relinquish the controls in more than two-and-one-half days of flying; Georgi Baidukoff, co-pilot, and Alexander Bialiokoff, whose navigation in a wilderness of north pole magnetic interferences brought the ship unerringly to this country.

Will Dismantle Plane

Asstounded at the acclaim which greeted them, the birdmen smiled wily, waved and then hastened to the home of General George Marshall, barracks commander, for breakfast and a sleep.

When they arose late in the day, they said they would not go on "the plane which was dismantled here. They added they would fly by chartered plane late today for

Hughes in Plea For Democracy

Problem Is to Preserve Institutions, Not to Build Them

Providence, R. I.—(AP)—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes today asserted the question facing society is not the longest one of establishing democratic institutions but of preserving them.

In a prepared address before the annual alumni meeting of Brown university, the chief justice of the United States, an alumnus of the class of 1881, asserted:

"The economic dislocations following the great war have produced conditions, international and national, which vex the imagination, and confuse the judgment. We still proclaim the old ideals of liberty but we cannot voice them with-out anxiety in our hearts."

"The question is no longer one of triumphing over sectional discords and unifying the nation, but whether a unified people putting forth its great strength for national ends will leave appropriate scope for individual freedom."

"The question is not one of adequate power of government, designed to keep clear the highways of honest endeavor, but how that power shall be used."

"Safe as we may still be in the present, what of the look ahead?" he asked.

"Are our democratic impulses growing weaker, and under the pressure of economic forces and insidious teachings of an alien philosophy, will our democracy be able to survive?"

Anonymous Donor Gives $1,250,000 To British Empire

London.—(AP)—An anonymous donor has given $1,250,000 ($1,250,000) to the empire as a tribute to the way Stanley Baldwin handled the abdication crisis, it was disclosed in commons lobbies today.

The donor said he wanted to make a "thanks offering" for the former prime minister's "courteous, far-seeing and sympathetic handling of a supremely difficult situation, which averted incalculable dangers for the empire."

The money was placed at the disposal of the premier's office for the purpose of "endowing any object best calculated to strengthen still further" the ties that bind the empire.

Insurgents Must Protect Water Supply in Conquered Bilbao

FAMINE IS ENDED

Basque Forces Consolidated in Mountains to Halt New Drive

By the Associated Press

Thousands of Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops streamed through captured Bilbao today to the hills west of the city in the start of a campaign against Santander, 45 miles away, last stronghold of the Basques.

Footbridges were thrown across the Nervion river to speed the movement. Insurgent officers considered subjugation of Santander necessary to overcome the menace of water famine in Bilbao. Water conduits were broken from territory still held by government forces.

Roads to Bilbao were jammed with insurgent trucks bringing food to the city's 300,000 inhabitants. Five food ships were reported entrenched three miles west of Bilbao for a new stand against the invaders.

At Madrid, a huge government mine exploded in suburban University City, where insurgent troops are entrenched. The government commander reported the explosion split in half the University City Clinical hospital, insurgent stronghold.

On the international scene, Germany was expected to ask Britain, France and Italy to join her in demanding from the Valencia government an apology for reported attempts to torpedo the cruiser Leipzig. Representatives of the powers met in London today.

Arguments Presented In Manitowoc Trial

Manitowoc.—(AP)—Attorneys for the prosecution and defense today presented their arguments to the jury in the last move before that body retired to deliberate the fate of Mrs. Letha Lester, 33-year-old Manitowoc woman on trial for the murder of her husband, Earl.

Defense attorneys Gerald Clifford of Green Bay, and Edward Meyer contended Mrs. Lester struggled with her husband in her own defense before the gun which ended the latter's life went off as the two motored from Green Bay to Manitowoc early on Feb. 4, 1937.

District Attorney John Cashman, prosecuting the case, held that Mrs. Lester deliberately murdered her husband.

Saturday in one of the last bits of testimony in the trial, Mrs. Lester denied from the witness stand that she shot Earl Lester. She said the gun went off as she thrust him away from her.

He suffered three broken vertebrae in the neck and his spinal cord was crushed.

Kleiber was swimming with Clifford McCullough, Appleton, and the latter was standing in the water when the accident occurred. In front of the cottage of Mrs. John Gerrits, McCullough's mother, McCullough had pointed out the water was shallow at that point. It was reported Kleiber said he could dive in shallow water but apparently had misjudged its depth.

He was pulled from the water by McCullough who summoned aid and took him to St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Bavaria Catholic Schools Dissolved

Hundreds of Thousands of Children Quit Parochial Institutions

Munich, Germany.—(AP)—Hundreds of thousands of Catholic school children quit their parochial schools today, predominantly Catholic Bavaria today in obedience to a new government order which dissolved the schools and made them secular institutions.

In Munich and upper Bavaria alone, the decree converted 966 professional schools into secular institutions. Only 100 secular schools had existed heretofore in this area.

In Vatican City, the prelates said Pope Pius would oppose the Nazi school move with all his power.

Authorities insisted they closed the Catholic schools "with the parents' consent."

This is the way it happened: Elections, in which parents were asked to choose between parochial and secular schools, were held in various provincial districts. Such elections have been held recently in other parts of Germany and have resulted in the secularization of schools. The Bavarian result, the authorities announced, showed from 95 to 99 per cent in favor of secular schools.

"Catholics have contended the elections were unfairly and hastily conducted and that parents in many cases did not have a chance to vote their real sentiment."

Adolf Wagner, minister of instruction of Bavaria, decreed the secularization, replacing 670 clerical teachers with laymen.

He emphatically denied the dissolution violated the concordat between the Nazis and the Vatican, which, in part, guaranteed the continued operation of the Catholic institutions.

Stony Brook, N. Y.—(AP)—William H. Parsons today set noon Thursday for termination of his offer to deal with the supposed kidnappers of his socially prominent wife without interference by law enforcement agencies.

Parsons read a statement to federal agents and newspaper reporters and photographers, gathered for a drizzling rain on the lawn of the Parsons home, which concluded:

"If nothing is heard by noon, Thursday, June 24, I will make request to law enforcement officers to immediately proceed with any possible action to bring to justice the persons responsible for my wife's disappearance."

In referring to a possible kidnapper or kidnappers, Parsons prepared statement used both the word "person" and "persons."

Freedom Banker Shooting Victim On Crandon Farm

Harry Behling, 39, Dies When He Falls With Rifle in His Hands

Harry Behling, 39, cashier of the Freedom State bank at Freedom for 14 years, was accidentally killed this morning at a farm near Crandon when a rifle in his hands was accidentally discharged, an Associated Press dispatch from Crandon said.

Behling, who was granted a leave of absence by his board of directors last Saturday, left later in the day with his wife and two children, John and Peggy, for the Eben Kennison farm, near Crandon, for a visit.

Reports from Crandon indicated that Behling was instantly killed as he fell down steps on the porch and the rifle in his hands was accidentally discharged, shooting him through the chest.

The bank at Freedom was closed today due to Behling's death and it was to reopen for business Tuesday morning as usual, the directors announced this afternoon. They plan to name a successor to Behling as soon as possible.

Behling is survived by his widow and three children, June, John and Peggy.

The sheriff said Harold confessed he went to another room, got a 22 caliber rifle, and during the girl's absence, fired the shot which killed her. The boy told how he then wiped fingerprints from the weapon.

Help Men Seek and Follow Sound Leadership, Dykstra Asks U. W. Graduating Class

the University of Wisconsin gradu-of learning must accept responsibility for training competent and de-

Seek Pension Increase For 92-Year-Old Widow

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—A mere matter of months may keep the 92-year old widow of the last survivor of Brazil's Brigade famous Civil war troop, from receiving maximum pension.

She is Mrs. Clara Dillon of Saxeville who wants her pension increased from $40 to $50 per month.
According to her daughter, Mrs. H.
L. Fargo of Ripon, she has records to prove that she was married to her soldier husband, John J. Dillon, during the Civil war.

The law provides that the $50 pension can be paid only to those widows of veterans who were married while their husbands were in service during the war.

Mrs. Dillon claims that she became a bride in 1864, while her husband was on furlough after participating in the Battle of Bull Run.

Sen. F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac is interested in her case and has told her that if the proper records can be furnished, it is likely that the increase will be made.

Robinson Stand On Relief Funds Puzzles Capital

Attitude Believed to be Due to Deep-Seated
Personal Conviction

Washington—Senator Robinson of Arkansas, administration leader in the senate, has started political tongues wagging by his revolt on the pending $1,500,000,000 relief bill.

The veteran Arkansan rarely has differed publicly with President Roosevelt since he became "boss"
of the senate majority in March, 1933.

For that reason colleagues watched him with some surprise today as he fought side by side with the Republicans and some Democrats to write into the relief bill a curb on administration spending.

Robinson's amendment would require local governments, where able, to put up at least 25 per cent of the cost of local projects.

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), leading the administration's battle for an unrestricted bill, contended the amendment would be rejected.

Friends forecast that Robinson would be back in the fold when the present issue was settled. They said his attitude on the relief question reflected a deep-seated personal conviction.

Informed senators recalled that for months Robinson, Vice President Garner, Senator Byrnes (D-S. C.) and other administration leaders had been fighting vigorously back-stage for economy.

They tried first to persuade Mr.
Roosevelt to cut his relief estimate from $1,500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.
When they failed to convince him, they started talking publicly of the need for economy.

All the while, however, Robinson has been cooperating with the president on other issues. There has been no evidence of a break in their friendly relations.

When Justice Van Devanter decided to retire from the supreme court, Robinson's colleagues almost unanimously urged his appointment. No word has come from the White House as Van Devanter's successor.

Jaces Will Select Officers for Year

Junior Chamber of Commerce will be elected by the board of directors at a special meeting at 5:30
Monday afternoon at the Metropolitan Cafe in Hotel Appleton. The

Fred Boughton, Glenn Arthur, Horace L. Davis, Jr., H. K. Dorus, Harry Hoeffel, Wilmer Stach and George Howden. Officers elected will be members of the board of directors.

SAFETY MEETING

national Longshoremen's group at the Kimberly Government docks this afternoon. Emergency treatment in case of sun stroke, heat prostration and drowning was demonstrated.

Ernst Mahler Is Given Degree by Brown University

Neenah Man Honored by School Now Headed
By Dr. Wriston

Providence, R. I.—Ernest Mahler of Neenah, chairman of the board of trustees of the Institute of Paper Chemistry at Lawrence college and internationally known chemical engineer, was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Science this morning at the annual commencement exercises of Brown University.

He was among 10 leaders in education, science, letters, government and other fields to receive degrees in the historic First Baptist Meeting House, oldest of its denomination in America. Other recipients included John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of the class of 1897, chairman of the board of trustees of the Rockefeller Foundation, and Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., '09, former solicitor general of the United States.

The degrees were conferred by President Henry M. Wriston, former head of Lawrence College, who officially at the first Brown commencement. President Wriston's citation for Mr. Mahler read as follows:

His Citation
"By family tradition and training prepared to manufacture paper, you enriched that background with scientific knowledge, a lively imagination, inventive skill, and capacity to work with men. These attributes matured into steadfast loyalty to fundamental research and the integrity of scientific education. Thus you have become a leader in transforming an ancient art through modern scientific processes. Friend of many years, with admiration and affection, by the authority vested in me I confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa, and admit you to all its rights and privileges."

A native of Austria, where he was born in 1867, Mr. Mahler comes from a family of paper chemists.
He was graduated from Darmstadt in 1912 with the degree of Diplom-Ingenieur. For the next two years he was a chemical engineer for the Badische Company, American branch of the German Dyestuffs Company.

Directs Research
In 1914 Mr. Mahler became associated with the Kimberly-Clark corporation, paper manufacturers, and was the organization's first director of research. He was placed in charge of the chemical laboratory and engineering department.
Today he is executive vice-president of the concern.

Mr. Mahler is the founder of the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry, from which he received a gold medal three years ago for his contributions to paper chemistry. He has invented numerous paper products and machinery. Mr. Mahler is president of the International Cellulose Products Company, and a director of numerous banks and corporations.

Urge Defeat of Bill Proposing Fisheries Body

Ask Passage of Measure Giving Control to Conservation Board

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau) Madison—Defeat of the bureau of fisheries bill sponsored by the Green Bay Commercial Fishermen's association, and passage of the Graess bill to vest complete control of the commercial fishing industry in the state conservation commission have been recommended to the state senate by the committee on state and local government and the joint finance committee, respectively, it was revealed here Saturday.

The two bills, both of which are held by their respective sponsors to contain the future prosperity of the fishing industry, have directly opposite purposes, and both have been the subject of bitter legislative debates in recent weeks.

The bureau bill is the creation of a group of lake and bay fishermen who are dissatisfied with the administration of present fishing laws by the conservation department, administration which has been vested in it by the legislature in previous sessions. The bill is the result of the "do nothing" policy of the department, they have said repeatedly.

Little Dependence
The second bill, introduced by Assemblyman Frank N. Graess of Sturgeon Bay, chief promoter of fishing legislation, envisions control by the conservation department with a minimum of dependence on the legislature. Blanket power would be given to the commission to govern the industry in the interests of conservation and the future welfare of the fishing business. This bill has already passed the assembly, and passages in the senate and approval by the governor has become Graess' chief project.

The bureau bill would divorce commercial fishing from the jurisdiction of the conservation department and proposes to set up a new agency, staffed by fishermen, with an appropriation of $50,000 to finance it. This measure after a stiff battle several weeks ago, was engrossed and sent to the finance committee.

Last week the finance committee voted to recommend killing by a vote of 9 to 4. Motion for non-concurrence was made by Assemblyman Leo T. Niemuth of Oshkosh and he was supported by Paul Fuhrman of Shawano county, Senator Conrad Shearer of Kenosha, and Assemblyman Hoesly, Baker, Kelly, Petterson, Perry and Nelson. Dissenting votes were cast by Senators Rowlands, Anderson and Sauld and Assemblyman Trege.

No Hearing Held
Because of the press of business last week no hearing was given in the senate to the Graess bill, but registrations for and against were filed. For the bill were a large group of fishermen from Milwaukee, Sheboygan and Kenosha, while upper lake shore and Green Bay fishermen opposed.

Passage of the bill was recommended by a unanimous vote of the state and local government committee, including Senator Joseph Clancy of Racine, Arthur Zimny of Milwaukee, Mike Mack of Shiocton, Chester Dempsey of Hartland and Pierce Morrissey of Rush Lake.

Unless the bills are taken up out of order, it is doubtful whether they will be acted upon in the next two weeks, for the senate is already two weeks in arrears in its calendars.

Duffy to Make Bid For Young Democrats

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac, who is expected to announce his candidacy for reelection soon, will put in a bid for the Young Democratic vote although it will take him out of Washington at an exciting time.

Duffy will be one of the speakers at the state Young Democrats convention, to be held in Portage, June 26, the weekend on which the president will entertain Democratic members of the house and senate at Jefferson Island in Chesapeake Bay to create "party harmony."

Rentner Lauds A. A. L. Success At State Meet

Can be Bulwark Against Anti-Religious Propaganda

Lauding the success of the Aid Association for Lutherans through the years of depression, Otto C. Rentner, Chicago, general counsel of the aid association told about 1,000 persons at the state federation convention banquet Saturday evening at the Alexander gymnasium that a fraternal society can be a fine bulwark against the anti-religious propaganda being spread over the world.

"We should be thankful God has preserved our institution all these years," he said in pointing to the conflicts in some European countries. "We need such gatherings as we have at our state conventions to promote fellowship and friendship. In some countries the war is not just a question of politics, but attacks upon churches and religion."

Tracing briefly the history of the Aid Association for Lutherans, the speaker said many members don't stop to think just what their certificate in the organization means. He recalled the dark days of the depression and said the aid association emerged from the greatest financial upheaval the world has ever known sound and in better shape than it was during the pre-depression days.

Cash Reserve
Fortunes were swept away during the depression and some members of the association were affected, he said. Some of them found that the aid association certificate they had held for a number of years had merit and a monetary value. In a number of cases as much as $500 in cash reserve had been built up and they were able to borrow on it.

The soundness of the organization was shown, then, he said, pointing out that the depression forced many life insurance societies out of business. During the depression the aid association distributed up to $400,000 in this manner, the speaker revealed.

"Those men were taught a lesson which must not be forgotten," he declared. "Those dark days may return in the future and you can't afford to take the chance of wanting. Increase your certificate as much as you are able and hold them." He stressed the two objects of the Aid Association for Lutherans which he said were to provide protection to the home and to promote and foster friendship and spiritual fellowship between the members.

Roosevelt Puts Soft Coal Code Into Operation

Issues Official Order on Fair Trades Practices Under Guffey Act

Washington — President Roosevelt officially ordered into operation today the code of fair practices provided in the Guffey-Vinson act for the soft coal industry. The far-reaching code affects the 400,000,000-ton soft coal industry.

The president promulgated the code in compliance with the Guffey-Vinson act which he approved April 26. It replaces a similar statute invalidated by the supreme court.

The National Bituminous Coal commission said it had received "substantial compliance" from soft coal producers who wished to escape the 193 per cent punitive sales tax on non-signers. The weekend mail, it added, probably would bring acceptance from virtually all the industry.

Officials explained any operator can apply for exemption, one ground for which is proof that he is not engaged in interstate commerce. Application of the code to each individual case will be determined this week at 23 conferences of commission representatives and industry.

These meetings will determine a minimum price per ton, which will be submitted to the commission for approval. Officials predicted minimum prices for each district would be posted not later than Aug. 1. The code imposes a tax of one-half a cent a ton, to be used for administrative purposes. It empowers the commission to approve minimum and maximum prices and marketing rules and regulations, district headquarters.

The act forbids price discrimination in the form of rebates, allowances or discounts of freight charges. It bans use of brokerage commissions or jobbers' arrangements. It represents an attempt to level the quality of coal and to attempt to learn information about a competitor's business.

It guarantees to mine workers the right of collective bargaining.

tion and brotherly love, must of necessity appeal to the hearts and souls of the inner men.

"The rendering of aid and assistance to one another, both spiritual and material, finds its origin in the words of the scripture; for it is written that religion, clean and undefiled before God and the Father, is this: To visit the fatherless and the widows and to minister unto them in their tribulations and to keep one's self unspotted from this world."

Stating that the original object of the fraternal beneficiary association was to provide protection for the home, President Blankenburg discussed the "remarkable success" of the association.

2-Fold Mission
"The individual cannot be separated from the home, and therefore the 2-fold mission of the fraternal beneficiary society is to protect the individual and the home," he said. "The original idea of affording protection, to the bread-winner only, has broadened into the whole family protection, which affords security to every member of the family circle and in which the Aid Association for Lutherans today has hundreds of 100 per cent families." "Every fireside in our country and the Dominion of Canada would be a greater asset to the community if enrolled in fraternal membership. The fraternal life insurance associations of these two great countries are not only responsible for the protection of the home and community, but they are responsible for the wholesome spirit of human sympathy and tolerance to extend throughout the realms of both countries. This spirit has been more responsible than all else for the success and advancement of these people."

Convention City
Naming of a convention city for 1938 was referred to the board of directors. The delegates also favored redemption of the plan of issuing accident and health policies.

The general convention session opened at Memorial chapel at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon following a concert by the Brillion band. Addresses of Welcome were given by A. H. Poepp, Appleton, general convention chairman, and Mayor John Goodland, Jr.

Reports were heard and officers elected. Alex. O. Benz and William F. Kelm, Appleton; Arthur Kruse, Cleveland, O.; Paul J. Peters, New London; Lea W. Neutzel, Wisconsin Rapids; and J. W. Sechecho, St. Louis, Mo., were endorsed as candidates for national directors.

Following the general session a tour of the city and adjacent communities was conducted. The Brillion band played a concert before the convention banquet which was held at 6:30 at the Alexander gymnasium. The banquet was served by the Ladies Aid society of St. Paul's Lutheran congregation.

Principal Speaker
Otto C. Rentner, Chicago, general counsel of the aid association was master of ceremonies. The Rev. F. M. Brannan opened the program with a prayer. The concert ensemble of WTAQ and WHEV radio stations played music. Other entertainers from the radio stations were Sam the Accordion Man and Ambrosius sisters. Clarence Melitz played zitherphone solos and Scotty Bryers rendered banjo selections.

Officers and directors of the association were introduced by Alex. O. Benz, national president of the aid association.

Service Officers Hold Meeting at Camp Douglas

County service officers from all parts of Wisconsin gathered Saturday and Sunday at Camp Douglas to hear talks by Adjutant General Ralph Immell, Major J. F. Mullen, Dr. Koch, of the Veterans Administration, Captain A. Freeman and Colonel Holden of the Grand Army home at Waupaca. The officers also reviewed the 6th Cavalry and were taken on an inspection trip of the warehouses where state military equipment is kept. Edward Lutz, Outagamie county service officer, also attended.

It Is Said--

THAT if you see Lieutenant Herbert Kapp of the police department throwing a new straw hat into an ash can some place, don't be surprised. About the first night the lieutenant appeared with the new hat he answered a call which required that he make his way through the brush near Lake Winnebago in a fair rain storm. Last Saturday night, shortly after 12 o'clock, with thunder rumbling in the sky and the water coming down in buckets, Lieutenant Kapp with his straw hat had to answer a call that there was a car in the river near the Lawe street bridge. So the lieutenant again ventured forth and before he returned to the station was forced to wade into the river to ascertain whether anyone was in the car and once more his clothes, his new hat and his disposition were thoroughly soaked. He wondered after the incident whether the hat was a jinx and if he's thrown it away that's the answer. The car in the river? It just happened to be a car with poor brakes that had been parked on the Lawe street hill while its owner was attending a party.

That city officials were mildly surprised Saturday when they received a phone call from a woman requesting the weed commissioner call at her home to cut weeds. Usually the calls on weed cutting are made by persons objecting to the work.

That from now on Clarence Below will do a lot of fly casting on dry land before attempting to fish from unstable places like a rowboat. Yesterday while fishing at Partridge lake with Howard Van Rooy, Below fell into the lake. He blamed the spill, however, on his attempts to dodge dragon flies.

That the Flambeau, crack North Western Railway locomotive, which runs from Chicago to the northern part of the state was forced to back up three quarters of a mile at the Spencer street station last Saturday afternoon when two friends of an Appleton girl failed to get off at the right stop. Chautemps Trying To Form Cabinet As Blum Steps Out ed in all quarters as of great international importance because of the role it played in the Spanish situation and its efforts with the United States and Great Britain through a tri-partite monetary accord to work for currency stabilization.

The peoples' front, including communist and socialist support, was openly friendly to the beleaguered Spanish government and was regarded by leftists as a democratic bulwark against fascism.

Faced with a rising budgetary deficit and other financial troubles, Blum asked parliament for power to deal with French finances by decree until July 31. Within three months of that time parliament would have been given a chance to approve or nullify the premier's efforts thus to combat speculation.

Senate Spurs Plan
The chamber approved such powers for the socialist premier who, during his term, directed a successful fight against control of the Bank of France by the "200 families."

But a conservative senate, led by the aging Joseph Caillaux, branded Blum's demands as "dictatorial" and twice refused to approve his measures.

Blum requested power not only to punish but also to "prevent" raids on government finances. Senate opponents declared the word "prevent" was the crux of their bitter opposition. They said they feared such power might be used to prosecute persons before they had committed a wrong "in contrast to a republican law."

Senators asserted also the decree powers would have enabled Blum to stabilize the franc immediately at a lower limit than fixed by the devaluation law -- 22.96 francs to the United States dollar. These opponents said the government would have profited by such a move to the sum of 17,000,000,000 francs ($765,000,000) -- seven billion from revaluing gold in the bank of France and ten billion from "paper money" in the exchange equalization fund which would be discontinued in the event of stabilization.

3 Soviet Airmen in 5,300-Mile Flight To United States

San Francisco in company with Troyanovsky, who flew here to greet them.

The fliers, landing after sleepless, nerve-straining hours at one point of which the polar air froze even their drinking water, were pleased when from among a group of Americans whose English they man slumped they heard a young man shout:

"Sdractrach!" "Hello" in Russian.

After their course had been picked up only at infrequent intervals, the Russians arrived over the Pacific northwest before dawn Sunday. Heading straight down the coast, they first wandered about in miserable flying weather and flew 125 miles south of here to Eugene, Ore.

With the weather getting steadily worse, they banked around and headed northward until they sighted the barracks airport.

Trio Not Exhausted
The men, despite the long hours, did not appear exhausted although they swayed slightly regaining their landfalls.

In the radio broadcast in which Ambassador Troyanovsky paraphrased the fliers' remarks, Chkaloff revealed that the most trying parts of the flight were in stormy weather over the Bering sea, Franz Josef land, Patrick land and near the north pole.

The pilot traced the course up the Kola Kola peninsula, between Franz Josef land and the northeast island, out over the Arctic wastes and across the pole, southward over Prince Patrick island, the Great Bear lake east of the Yukon and down west of Ft. Simpson to Chichikof on the cross straits. From there the course lay south inside of Queen Charlotte island, over Vancouver island to Victoria and down Washington's Olympic peninsula.

Had Enough Gas
But for the weather, the pilot said he could have made San Francisco, as he had enough gasoline left out of the original 2,000 gallons to fly 750 miles.

The flight was made at altitudes ranging from 4,000 to 6,000 meters, and the plane, not built for speed, averaged 100 miles an hour.

The actual mileage flown was left to official determinations, but the distance from Moscow to Vancouver was figured roughly at 5,300 miles, well under the official world distance record of 5,837 miles held by the Frenchmen Paul Godes and Maurice Rossi, and the Russians' own unofficial mark of 5,855 miles between Moscow and Nicolaevsk in eastern Siberia. The Russians were believed to have flown more than the 5,300 miles, since they went past here down the coast before turning back and landing.

HEALTH SERVICE

It is my sincere wish to arouse more interest in the science of Chiropractic and make it possible for more people to enjoy it's benefits.

A wonderful power is in each human body. It would appear that some have more recuperative power than do others. But it is only in the case of a few. Each is born with the same amount of this power, no more, no less. It is given to each to maintain, control and regulate the muscles, ligaments, bones, vessels, glands and organs of his body toward a definite end -- health, growth and development. The power is there. It is ready and willing, yes, anxious to rebuild the body in case of sickness and thereafter, to continue building it stronger and more vigorous. A lack of freedom for this power to reach every part of the body when and where it is needed is due to a misplaced vertebra in the spine. Recognizing, as we Chiropractors do, that this power is in abundance in each person, we recognize further, that like the electric power, it must have a place to be stored, and a means of conveyance through the body. Could it be otherwise? This power resides within the brain and is conveyed through the body by means of the spinal cord and nerves through which a full control of every part of the body is maintained. The spinal cord is the distributing center. When the vertebra in the neck becomes misplaced it produces a pressure upon the spinal cord or fibers and interferes with the flow of life giving energy to the body thereby weakening the body to disease. This has been proven in thousands of cases by the use of a scientific instrument, Neurolocator, that verifies and locates nerves that are under pressure. Chiropractic will solve your health problems by relieving the nerves of the interference pressure. The recuperative power is turned loose. It flows freely over the nerves to every part. The rebuilding process is started. Given the required time of the necessary changes to be made, this power, really nature, will restore and natural, giving a little allowance for possible damages resulting from pressure on nerves in the spinal column.

President Given Authority to Act In Emergencies

Has Right to Send Troops Into States if Government Is Menaced

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — President Roosevelt's private secretary, Stephen Early, is an able press relations man and is not often imposed upon by other administration officials who seek through him to issue misleading propaganda. But the statement he gave the newspaper men to the effect that the president of the United States could not order troops to a state unless the governor or legislature of the state requested them is not in accordance with the constitution or with the precedent.

There are two clauses in the federal constitution relating to domestic violence and one does require the application of the state legislature or governor to secure federal aid, but the other was put in the constitution to take care of contingencies in which both the legislature and the governor were derelict in their duty. It is the clause which guarantees every state a republican form of government. And in pursuance of this clause of the constitution, congress enacted a law which specifically commands the president of the United States to intervene. This law is to be found, along with other statutes, in a senate document issued by the sixty-second congress in 1922.

Some weeks ago when this correspondent cited the law in question, certain administration lawyers issued to the press informally the misleading information that the statute had been declared unconstitutional by the supreme court in 1887. But it was another section of the same law and not Section 5299 which was declared invalid.

Drafted by Officials

Had Section 5299 been invalid since 1887, it never would have been included in the senate document in 1922, which, incidentally, was "prepared under the direction of the secretary of war by the office of the judge advocate general" and presumably for the use of the United States army in handling domestic disturbances.

It is worth quoting again because it applies directly to the future appeal made by the mayor of Johnston, Pa., to President Roosevelt for help, the law reads:

"Whenever insurrection, domestic violence, unlawful combinations or conspiracies in any state so obstructs or hinders the execution of the law thereof and of the United States as to deprive any portion or class of the people of such state of any of the rights, privileges, or immunities or protection named in the constitution and secured by the laws for the protection of such rights, privileges, or immunities, and the constituted authorities of such state are unable to protect or from any cause fail in or refuse protection of the people in such rights, such facts shall be deemed a denial by such state of the equal protection of the laws to which they are entitled under the constitution of the United States, and in all such cases, or whenever any such insurrection, violence, unlawful combination, or conspiracy opposes or obstructs the laws of the United States or the due execution thereof, or impedes or obstructs the due course of justice under the same laws of the United States or the due execution thereof, it shall be his duty, to take such measures, by the employment of the militia or the land and naval forces of the United States, or of either, or by other means, as he may deem necessary for the suppression of such insurrection, domestic violence, or combinations."

spirit of this law, for the wording of his proclamation in July, 1894, sending federal troops to Illinois, sending federal troops to Illinois, uses rather the same language. It is interesting to note that the governor of Illinois protested against the sending of federal troops into his state. Later on, a federal court of injunction against strikers and their leaders was issued and the matter reached the Supreme Court of the United States, which, on May 27, 1895, said:

"We hold it to be an incontrovertible principle that the government of the United States may, by means of physical force, exercise through its official agents, execute on every foot of American soil the powers and functions that belong to it. This necessarily involves the power to command obedience to its laws and to execute its functions in all places and does not derogate from the power of the state to execute its laws at the same time and in the same places."

"The one does not exclude the other, except where both can not be executed at the same time. In that case, the words of the constitution itself show which is to yield. This constitution, and all laws which shall be made in pursuance thereof, shall be the supreme law of the land."

"The entire strength of the nation may be used to enforce in any part of the land the full and free exercise of all national powers and the security of all rights entrusted by the constitution to its care. The strong arm of the national government may be put forth to brush away all obstructions to the free flow of interstate commerce or the transportation of the mails. If the emergency arises the army of the nation, and all its militia, are at the service of the nation to compel obedience to its laws."

Declared "Emergency"

Only last week, the president of the United States, through the secretary of labor, issued an administrative order setting forth that "an emergency has arisen as a result of a labor dispute in the steel industry which tends to obstruct and interrupt the free flow of raw materials, semi-finished and finished steel products in interstate commerce."

It will be noted that the governor of Ohio did not limit his request for federal intervention to the constitutional provision which declares that a state may apply for aid when it is unable to afford protection against domestic violence. Governor Davey said the strike controversy had spread over eight states and was a subject of interstate commerce.

To secure enforcement of the federal laws against obstructing interstate commerce, a telegram or message from a governor of a state is really superfluous. The responsibility for removing obstructions to interstate commerce and for prosecuting labor leaders and anybody else who conspires to interrupt or obstruct interstate commerce rests with the president of the United States, who, under the constitution, is obligated to assume the initiative. The constitution says the president "shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

Laws Adequate

Labor unions operating nationally across state lines are engaged in an open effort to impede interstate commerce and there is plenty of federal law to punish those who are guilty of using pickets and other persons to prevent by physical force the shipment of goods and the

Draw From Fund On Unemployment

Wisconsin First State to Make Benefit Payments

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—The state of Wisconsin has again appeared before the federal government in the role of "first." It is the only state which has begun benefit payments under unemployment compensation provisions of the Social Security act and so is the first to draw upon the unemployment trust fund in the United States treasury.

Wisconsin, officials announce, has withdrawn $1,000,000 from the trust fund which totals $253,570,891 and which represents deposits plus accrued interest, of 34 states and the District of Columbia.

In a brief summary of its progress up to June 1, the Social Security board revealed today that up to that date, 27,704,398 social security account numbers had been assigned to applicants for participation under the old-age benefits program.

Officials estimate that during June 1, 747,500 needy persons in 43 states will receive federal, state and local aid under approved public-assistance plans.

Of that total, needy aged number 1,347,000, needy blind number 34,800, and dependent children number 363,100.

Duffy Will Speak at Milwaukee on July 4

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac, who is doing a lot of speaking here and there lately, is going to have a busy time of it over the Fourth of July.

The Fond du Lac Senator is scheduled to address some 100,000 members of the German societies of Wisconsin at Milwaukee park in Milwaukee on the Fourth of July.

That speech completed, he will hurry back to Washington where Monday evening, July 5, he will be a speaker at holiday ceremonies at Washington monument, preceding the fireworks display. Duffy's Washington speech will be broadcast over a national hook-up.

gress or ingress of the people who want to keep on working.

For many months the new deal struggled to get the supreme court to interpret "direct effects" on interstate commerce, and, in the Jones and Laughlin case, the highest court in the land gave such an interpretation basing it on the so-called "second Coronado case." Now that the New Deal has all the power it needs, political reasons and fear of the loss of John Lewis' support are being cited by opponents of the administration as the real factor of delay and inaction.

Congressmen Hysterical Over Proposed Income Tax

BY WESTBROOK FEGLER

Washington—Mr. Roosevelt may have figured that his investigation of those who get their civilization at cut rates through income tax evasions would equal the smashing dramatic success of Fred Pecora's inquiry back in the honeymoon days of the New Deal. But a man cannot turn out a hit every day, and it does begin to appear that the boys laid an egg in this production.

Maybe a midget is what they need, but if you are asking me, the trouble is that the patriots who are running the present productions are a little self-conscious over the fact that they are cut-rate passengers on the ship of state themselves.

Mr. Roosevelt has paid only one income tax for years, whereas other New Yorkers received much less money and less service out of the state and national governments regularly have had to pay two. Mr. Morgenthau, the man who blew the whistle, does not have to pay the state tax on his federal salary, and all the statesmen who are conducting the inquiry are immune to the state tax in their respective home communities, in addition to which fact, the house of representatives turned down in wild alarm the other day a proposal to tax the $25 or $30 apiece for their share of the local government of the City of Washington.

If the patriots of the lower house had kept their disposition in this grave crisis it would not have been so bad, but several of the best minds grew almost hysterical over the prospect of their having to pay $25 or $30 a year, and the defeat of the tax was a spectacular avowal of the principle attributed to J. P. Morgan, and later modified by him, that a man is a sucker to pay any more taxes than the law requires.

Would Put Finger On Cut-rate Passengers

If a patriot prevents the passage of a law on the ground that it would tax him he feels ridiculous putting the finger on other cut-rate passengers, and, for a fact, he is.

Up to now the complaint of Mr. Morgenthau and Mr. Elmer Irey, of the treasury's detective division, has been mainly that certain individuals did not leave a good-sized tip beside the plate in addition to the price of civilization. The trouble appears to be that the menu contains two or more prices for the fancy meats and heavy gravy, but only one price for beans and other simple fare.

By reading the small type, the dirty rich have been able to save themselves large discounts on their caviar and duck, but the fault lies with the congress which gave them their choice of several prices. Like Mr. Roosevelt himself, in the case of his constitutional exemptions, and Mr. Morgenthau with his, the defendants naturally selected the least of the evils and picked up all their change.

Now a suggestion is to be heard in Washington that if some individuals must be compelled to make public explanation of returns of admitted legality it would be not only fair but, possibly better entertainment, if all the members of the committee should be required to do the same.

And Congressman Ham Fish, a Republican from the district where Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Morgenthau have farms, is urging that, if legal returns are subject to explanation for the record and the amusement of the people, the returns of his two most distinguished, though by no means most contented constituents,

GRANTLAND RICE Describes The Unhappy Ending To A Seattle Motorist's Week-End Trip

GRANTLAND RICE Well-Known Sports Commentator, Radio Announcer and Columnist

The strains of "When We Come To The End of A Perfect Day" seemed to fit the mood of Mr. Jack Davis of Seattle, Washington, and his party of four, as they motored along the scenery-laden paths leading down from Mt. Baker. Then, with startling suddenness, the scene changed. BANG! The left front tire had blown out with the noise of a thunder-clap! A terrible drag set in. Down went the brakes. But too late. Off the road they shot.

Why any motorist should trust ordinary tires is beyond me. Especially when the engineers of the B. F. Goodrich Company have perfected a tire invention that brings not blow-out protection to every American motorist. This revolutionary construction, called the Life-Saver Golden Ply, which is found only in Goodrich Silvertowns, is a layer of special rubber and full-floating cords, scientifically treated to resist the terrific blowout-causing heat generated inside all tires by today's higher speeds.

Our blow-out was enough to cure Mr. Jack Davis of Seattle, Washington. Now you'll find his car equipped with Goodrich Safety Silvertowns. Make up your mind to "beat a blow-out to the punch" by starting to ride on Silvertowns today. No extra cost for the Golden Ply.

NO PRIVATE ARMIES FOR AMERICA!

Law and order have broken down in several parts of the United States, and broken down almost completely and for such length of time as to suggest the usual questions bound to follow upon such an event.

There are manufacturing plants that employ from five to ten thousand men and in which there is good evidence to believe that from 70 to 95 per cent of these men want to work and don't want to strike. In some of these cases the C.I.O. recruits its pickets from far removed points, many of them coal miners called off a job. C.I.O. leaders classify such pickets their "flying squadrons" and apparently order them hither and thither over the country in cavalcade fashion as Pershing placed his army corps on a real battle front.

We are sanguine of the good sense of the American people as a whole and of the working people in particular. And we know, we think, that the attitude of mind and disposition, as well as the integrity of purpose and intelligence, of the American people constitute the greatest asset America has, much more valuable than all the gold in its specially prepared coffers plus all the jewels of India's rajahs. We are likewise hopeful that good sense and consideration of public policy will outweigh the anger that sometimes flares in men's bosoms when they are thwarted or the imaginary glory that sometimes thrills them when they are out looking for applause.

Nevertheless, the situation, we insist, is dangerous. We do not refer to the killing of pickets or protectors of the property, sad as is such a circumstance, but to the fact that Mr. Lewis is training a personnel that takes on some of the attributes of an army. And when private armies begin to grow up—look out.

And they will grow up if one is started. They will grow up in self-defense. They are bound to grow up. They have grown up in every country on the earth every time an adventurer like Mr. Lewis thought he had a new idea by building a private army. They have grown up in Italy, Austria, Spain, Germany, even France and Ireland.

We could detail, perhaps by the hour, the reasons why such private armies are always menaces, and almost invariably clash into some form of civil war, or, by the superior number and handling of one outfit and crush the other, and then set up a government that continues to crush. But the public ought by now to be familiar with the subject.

There must be no private armies in America. There must be no flying squadrons. There must be no cavalcades moving in guerrilla warfare.

Ordinarily public officials understand these facts so clearly, and realize the enormity of the consequences attendant upon failure to correct, that action through restraint is direct and forthright. During Washington's administration the attempt by a certain section to suspend the rights of every man, and generally referred to as Shays' Rebellion, was put down with little trouble because the principle and the necessity for straight words were understood, and acted upon. During Jefferson's administration Col. Aaron Burr, for four years vice-president of the United States, was informed against because of preliminary steps to form a private army. Although Burr claimed the purpose was to protect southern states from the encroachments of Spain, but Burr, though properly acquitted of treason, abandoned the private army idea.

Nervous action by these presidents gave the young nation confidence in itself and among its neighbors.

The same principle is involved today. There must be no private armies in America, not for any purpose.

The army belongs to the nation, to all of the people, and must be directed by those temporarily in power and authorized to act in the public interest.

THE TRAILER PROBLEM

Legislatures of a number of States are finding that the rapidly growing trailer industry is creating perplexing problems. The legislatures are feeling their way into uncharted territory. They must reconcile conflicting interests. Upon the wisdom of their decision depends in large measure, the future of this typically American development.

Seventeen states have enacted trailer legislation which covers, principally, the operation of trailer camps. Other states are falling in line. Legislators cannot ignore the desires of the estimated 1,250,000 trailer nomads who will take to the highways this year. To do so will divert tourist revenues to states whose legislatures have adopted more liberal attitudes. Legislators are caught between two fires. Many municipalities resent trailer intrusion and in some instances are setting up ordinances which are operating to force trailer owners into areas outside municipal confines. There they become the problem of the county and of the state. Other cities are making a frank bid for trailer patronage. Lacking agreement defining adequate trailer regulation, the problems of many states are complicated by the variety of ordinances adopted by their cities.

There is need for uniform regulations covering trailer use on all highways, in all camps, all municipalities and all states. Uniformity of regulation will not be secured easily. After forty years, there exists a notorious lack of uniformity in regulation of the use of motor vehicles. But the experience that has been gained since the early days of the automobile should help to speed the task of the lawmakers.

Trailer owners cannot expect to evade taxation. But the development of a new industry will be slowed if the power to tax gets out of hand. Trailer owners are automobile owners and, as such, already are taxed heavily. Trailer owners need fire and police protection while in camp. Health regulations must be enforced. Trailers present new problems in traffic regulation on the highways. Men must be detailed to the task. Municipalities cannot be expected to supply educational and hospital facilities for nomadic populations without recompense. Trailer owners must expect to bear at least part of the cost of the services which their presence demands.

In horse and buggy days some quaint regulations linked the first motorists. In a number of states, motorists were required to bring chugging cars to a full stop while frightened horses were led around them and could drive no faster than six miles an hour in cities. Some of our present trailer regulations may appear as quaint in another forty years.

A YARDSTICK STARTS TO SLIVER

When political engineers start constructing gigantic works for their political effect a fearful crash in some way or other is hardly avoidable. The President realized that fact, and knew the people realized it, when he started constructing several great water power projects. In an apologetic manner he called them yardsticks so the people might understand they were only experiments, and certainly reasonable experiments are justifiable under any system. Quite recently, however, the Administration, afire with victory and drunk with popularity, has thrown discretion to the winds and is going to plunk down a waterpower wherever it can find a footing.

But the switch from experiment to a practical reality is much too early.

Collier's Magazine, which has almost invariably supported Mr. Roosevelt, voices indignation and alarm at the fact that the Bonneville dam on the Columbia river is just about to completely destroy the immense salmon industry.

The political engineers had not reckoned adequately with the fact that millions of salmon, millions upon millions, swim hundreds of miles up the river to breed. The next spring the youngsters or fingerlings come down on their way with the river to the sea. Stop the run up the river as does the Bonneville dam, and you deal almost a death blow to an industry that brings tens of thousands of jobs and millions of dollars in revenue along the Columbia each year.

Collier's continues:

"It is admitted to be an experiment more than $7,000,000 is being spent at Bonneville for fish ladders and elevators in the hope the fish will know how to use them. At one place the salmon will be locked through a ship is raised, and let out above the dam to continue their journey. But even if the fish have enough sense to find the ladder entrance, nature's still have two reasons why the dam probably will destroy the industry. One is that above the dam there will be a 44-mile pool of water. Salmon instinctively head down a current in still water they die."

But if the salmon get through the ladders and elevators, and the still water, even if they win far upstream, what chance does what happens to the fish coming down when they are walking through turbines in the power house? Nobody knows, but the probabilities are dark for the fingerlings.

And for what purpose has a great industry been jeopardized? The article says that a really intelligent people in the Pacific seem to believe in the dam. But the dam is incompatible with the Administration's campaign to justify its wastage while insisting that there is no market anywhere in sight for the power and the plants have enough capacity already to care for ten years' growth, and should, even like this to quote further from Collier's:

"Some Oregonians take a look into the future and justify the dam this way: If the turbines never spin out a kilowatt hour the fact that they can hold down power rates. If the locks never pass a ship into the upper river they will be worth what they cost as a freight-rate increase discourager. And if the salmon cease to run—well that will be just too bad. Hardly anyone in the Northwest says there is a real need for Bonneville."

Nevertheless, on with the dance of the dervishes. The best way to hide the uselessness of Bonneville or its destructive character is to jump with feverish activity to another. Do not even give the people time to reflect upon the wrongs already committed. Get their eyes on another sunrise even if it is another illusion.

And if the salmon industry is destroyed and nothing is gained? Just pass that off with a shrug. Who cares for salmon, anyway?

A CALL TO ARMS

Can someone tell, I'd like to know
What makes the "contrails" be so slow?
Were I as talented as they
You'd see my name here every day.

There's "Zeke" of pseudo-farmer fame,
That mighty hunter of big game,
Whose ready wit and gifted pen
Would make him welcome here again.

And D. Grade Pulp, what's keeping you?
I think it's time that you came through;
At writing squibs you're sure, O. K.
We'd like to hear you say your say.

The Little Bundle made her bow,
But she's gone into hiding now;
She up and made one witty splurge
Then straightway lost her writing urge.

And where is Kutz? I think, by heck,
That he's been in another wreck;
For though we hoped he'd write a streak,
He doesn't do as much as squeak.

Where's the Blon De Marze and Dee Jay Cee,
And Shadow, too, where can he be?
And Jane Patricia, yes, and more,
We'll gladly let you have the floor.

So show your bag of clever tricks,
Keep Jonah's mind off politics.
If we all do our very best
Poor F.D.R. might get a rest.

—MRS. G. W.

I must remember to tell the composing room to keep the type standing on this remarkable piece of verse. It is likely that I may be able to use it again quite soon.

In all fairness, however, it must be said that both Zeke and Dee Jay Cee have been more than doing their share of enlightening the readers and relieving the pressure from your correspondents. Since one is a New Dealer and the other just as strong in the opposite direction, however, I can see no relief from the political conversation.

But why not talk politics? This is the most interesting political era the country has seen in generations, and it's well worth talking about. I can remember back when this column was first started, there were only Mussolini and Hitler to talk about.

"PUPPY FOR SALE"

"Puppy for sale!" And so much more!
Inquiring paws upon the door;
Whole-hearted welcome when day ends
From the most mischievous of friends!

"Puppy for sale!" A True heartbeast,
Four loving but home-loving feet,
A ruzzing nose and sympathy,
If I am sad, to comfort me.

"Puppy for sale!" This time alone
I can buy something for my own
A long above all to possess—
A loyal heart, and happiness!

ODD HOUSE IN NEBULOUS STAGE

Some weeks ago one of our faithful readers sent the following inquiry without date:

"I have taken down curtains, and have put maps on the wall. Can you make some further suggestions for Odd House? (Mrs. W. J. W.)

From the context I infer Mrs. W. alludes to the house mentioned in this column recently, the sort of house the nut in charge of this column would build if he could live his own way.

There would be no purely decorative monkeyshines on the walls of Odd House. Colored maps of all the world, certainly, or paintings or photographic representations of actual scenes or subjects the master might like—but never a vague pictorial expression of nothing at all. For all such "art"—a silent Bronx exhalation. I said Odd House is designed so the master may live his own way.

Odd House has no dining room. Whether the nut dines alone or has forty guests at dinner, the main room will not be otherwise engaged during dinner, so why not use it. Seems to me it is always a bit ungracious to shoo everybody out of the living room into a cubbyhole or stall for the sole purpose of feeding. Especially so when the herd is permitted to take cocktails, hors d'oeuvres, cigars or plug tobacco right there in the living room where they are comfortable.

Curtains? Mrs. W. made the right beginning. Certainly no curtains anywhere if you intend to cover them with curtains, shades, awnings, blinds?

Maps on the walls, with a varnish or other impervious surface, could be cleaned when necessary by washing. My main objection to wall paper or other conventional hangings is the weariness any such machine-made decoration causes. Have you ever endured hours or days of convalescence in a room where you could only wander in a daze amidst the nine thousand and four hundred sixty forgetfulnesses on the walls? Surely an imaginative cruise in the Mediterranean or in the Gulf of California or down the Pacific coast of Mexico and Central America would be much better diversion for an invalid.

Windows unobstructed by ugly gadgets whose main purpose is to conceal dirt, crudity or tawdriness, are a main feature of Odd House. If the view from the window, or the view into the house thru the window is not what one wishes, why have a window there at all? Better, for the purpose of admitting light and air, to put windows in or near the roof.

Further features of Odd House will be described from time to time. Readers are invited to offer suggestions—remembering that health is the main consideration in equipping the place.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—President Roosevelt's regional planning proposal, which some regard as adding six more TVA's, opens a way for ending the impasse among the directors of TVA No. 1.

Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the board, and David E. Lilienthal, have been at administrative sword-points ever since they took over the job of making the Tennessee Valley project such a great navigation and flood control enterprise that power men screamed in agony.

Four Against One

Morgan, the moderator, wanted to cooperate with local private power companies, principally Commonwealth and Southern, in development and distribution of power. But his engineering training did not carry him far enough in the field of social betterment to suit Lilienthal. The younger, aggressive Lilienthal wanted to make the Tennessee valley into a southern Valhalla where there would be little room for earthy-minded private owners of public utilities.

He converted Harcourt A. Morgan, the third member on the board, to his views, and with Senator Norris and President Roosevelt on his side, soon had Chairman Morgan pinned to the mat. TVA has been ending steadily, haltered at points by the power companies. It has extended particularly in the direction of setting up communities in the power business.

For a time Chairman Morgan's resignation was expected but the administration, and Senator Norris, have a high respect for Morgan's engineering ability. One person close to court said it was likely a Columbia valley authority would be set up soon enough to permit Morgan to be ferried over there. His engineering skill would be useful in working out a distribution system and, as yet, there is no plan to use CVA as an agency to revitalize the Pacific Northwest.

Birth Control

Puerto Rico may soon be paying Margaret Sanger to help it get started on a birth control program. It might surprise her, since she recently listed Iceland and Bermuda as the only two spots where authorities permitted birth control information to be spread.

But the Puerto Rico legislature recently repealed all barriers against disseminating the information, after its population had expanded so fast there now are scarcely enough turnips to go around and certainly not enough of the better things of life.

Mrs. Sanger helped Bermuda set up clinics after its authorities reported a population growth of 10,000 to a net top of 30,000, most of the increase being negro. Puerto Rico, populated, has added about 15 per cent in a decade, semi-official estimates indicate.

What's New at the Library

One of the most important figures of the present era and one who will occupy a prominent place in future history is the subject for the Literary Guild selection for June which is ready for circulation at Appleton Public Library. It is "King Edward VIII" by Hector Bolitho and is described as one of the frankest biographies ever published. It is the story of the Duke of Windsor who abandoned his rule over half the world for the love of an American woman.

The author had long been engaged on this biography and had nearly completed work on it before the Simpson affair had become public knowledge, and after the abdication he was forced to rewrite, revise and add to the manuscript. Mr. Bolitho had the privilege of being attached to the Duke of Windsor when the latter made his tour of New Zealand as Prince of Wales. He begins the story with a sketch of the aged Queen Victoria and gives interesting glimpses into what seems an almost legendary past with stories of Victoria, King Edward VII, the Kaiser and Lord Roberts. The volume closes with the events of 1936, the abdication and the Duke's final speech to his people as king.

The Book-of-the-Month selection for June, "Bulwark of the Republic" by Berton J. Hendrick, which also has been received at the library is a biography of the Constitution of the United States which is 150 years old this year. It tells how that document was devised, who built it and defended it, what crises threatened its existence, etc. Here many Americans will learn for the first time the inside story of Marbury vs. Marbury, the Dartmouth College case, the Dred Scott decision, and will see in a new light such men as James Madison, Alexander Hamilton, Thomas Jefferson, Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglas and others of more recent times.

Another biographical volume which is sure to interest Americans is "The Woodrow Wilsons" by Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, youngest daughter of the late President Wilson. It is a chronicle of the Wilson family from the earliest memories of the author to the White House death. The writer gives a picture of Wilson as a simple, natural man, a husband and father, a person, and not a "personage," of life in the college town of Princeton while her father was still a young professor, of the coming of new responsibilities, the nomination and election. She brings out interesting traits of personality in her father and the advisers and opponents around him among them William G. McAdoo whom she married during her father's first term.

"Best Short Stories of 1937" edited by Edward J. O'Brien has something for all tastes, best stories by well-known American authors side by side with interesting discoveries of the year by new and hitherto unknown writers. Some of the authors represented here are William Faulkner, Elma Godchaux, Ernest Hemingway, Paul Horgan and Manuel Komroff.

Letter-writing, that almost lost art, is given new life in a book entitled "Take a Letter, Please" by John B. Opdycke. Described as a cyclopedia of business and social correspondence, it shows how greater effectiveness and individuality may be secured in letter-writing and contains hundreds of actual letters to illustrate the principles expounded, covering a wide range from the output of great corporations to personal letters so appealing that their charm has kept them alive long after the death of their writers.

Summer-time is travel-time, whether you actually take a trip or just settle down in a comfortable chair with a book about far-away lands and strange peoples. The armchair traveler will find a wealth of new material at the library this week for several new travel books are included in a recent shipment of books received here. "Road My Body Goes" by Clifford Gessler is the account of an expedition to remote and primitive islands of the southeastern Pacific, for which he left a telegraph news desk on a Honolulu newspaper. The book gives one the feel of the South Seas, being an account of months spent among an unspoiled people who had never known white men before.

"Cruise of the Conrad" by Alan Villiers is a tale of the crossing of seven seas and four oceans beginning in 1934 when Captain Villiers bought the 100-foot, 212 ton ship, the Joseph Conrad, and left Harwich, England. He visited Madeira, the West Indies and New York, Rio de Janeiro, sailed into the South Indian ocean, through the Dutch East Indies, the Java sea, Singapore, the China sea, Tahiti and around Cape Horn.

Hugo Adolf Bernatzik visited eleven different peoples, three of whom had never before been photographed, and tells about his travels in a new book "Gari-Gari." He gives a picture of native cultures he feels are soon to vanish under European "protection."

Treat 111,166,000 Gallons of Sewage At Disposal Plant

A total of 111,166,000 gallons of sewage was treated at the city sewage disposal plant during the last month, according to Clarence Baetz, superintendent. Sludge totaling 238,550 gallons or 144,114 pounds of dry solids. Digested sludged pumped onto the drying beds amounted to 67,200 pounds.

The digesting process developed 67,797 cubic feet of gas of which 690,000 was utilized in heating the digesting tanks.

Two tanks are now being used in a method of more thoroughly treating the sludge. The methods include a primary digesting process in one tank and a secondary process in the other.

A total of 1,397 cubic feet or 20,955 pounds of grit were removed from the flow into the grit chamber.

Want School Fund Bill Opposed by Appleton

Appleton is asked to oppose a bill which provides for setting up of a separate "city school fund" in a letter received by Mayor Goodland from the League of Wisconsin

Municipalities. Under the proposed law all money raised by city taxation for schools in second, third and fourth class cities under the school plan would be placed in the fund in February. The letter points out that this would inconvenience cities as all taxes are not entirely collected that early in the year.

Sending Child to Bed Is Poor Form of Punishment

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Get him to bed and keep him there for a few days until we can be certain about him. He will be far better off in bed."

"No, no, Dr. Phillip. I don't want to go to bed. I didn't do anything. I don't want to go to bed."

"O, yes you do, son. You'll feel better in bed. That ache in your legs will soon go away when you lie in your nice warm bed and rest. Bed's the best place when you don't feel so good."

"I don't want to go to bed. I hate going to bed. It's too lonesome."

"You can have picture books, for a short time anyway. Then you'll go to sleep and when you wake up you'll be very much better."

"I won't feel better if I have to go to bed. I want to lie on the couch, and sit in the big chair. I don't want to go to bed until it is night."

The sick child was fighting to stay out of bed because he was used to being sent to bed as a punishment. If he made too much noise—off to bed. If he was naughty—off to bed. If somebody complained about him—to bed he went.

"At least we can have some peace while he is there. And I know where he is," his mother said.

It is not a good practice. Children should know bed as the pleasant place to which they go when they are tired, or sick, and in need of rest and peace. It is a mistake to make a child's associations with bed so unpleasant as to cause him to dislike going there. It is far better to say, "Your nice bed is waiting for you. You'll feel much better after you have rested there a little while," than to say, "You're a nuisance. The whole family is upset by your continual whining. Go to bed and stay there until I give you permission to get up again." The child may dislike going in either case, but the thought that his mother wanted to give him help and comfort will make the going easier than the thought of punishment will make it.

Healthy children are active. Active children are usually healthy and happy. It is wrong to send an active, healthy child to bed in the daytime because it means a check on activity, and the consequent misery of body and mind. Instead of helping the child as proper punishment ought to do, it makes his condition worse. His body needs to discharge energy. It is likely that the trouble he got into was caused by his inability to discharge it fast enough through proper channels. Lying in bed only dams up the energy, increases its pressure, creates rebellion and sets the stage for disobedience. The pent-up energy must be released even if the child has to find another and a worse method of releasing than before.

If a child is pouting about the house and shouting and slaming things, laughing too loud, doing everything too much, the remedy is not bed, but release in the open air. Send him out with permission to shout and stamp until he exhausts himself. If he is rebellious and cranky, divert him. Wash his face and arms, to the elbows, with warm water and soothing soap. Pat him dry, talking gently to him all the time. Give him a glass of warm milk and a cracker. Tell him a story. Rest him without his knowing it.

When it is bed time, send him to bed, but keep him out of bed for the length of his day, unless he is sick. Then make his bed a haven of refuge.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

The important work in the vegetable garden now is keeping down weeds. Until recently those of us who write about gardens have always said with great assurance that it was even more important to keep the ground loose on the surface than to root out the weeds. But some of the experiment stations have been giving us a jolt by asserting that there are many doubts now as to the truth of this theory. Be that as it may, a garden looks better when the surface is kept well cultivated, and it stands to reason that water will be absorbed more quickly by cultivated ground than by soil which has been baked so hard by the sun that the water runs off instead of sinking in.

Black Accessories

A crisp, firmly-woven fabric which combines spun rayon and wool is used in a lightweight two-piece suit for summer wear. Smartly contrasted with the sheer white of the suit are the accessories—a black hat with stiffened taffeta brim and a bag and slip-on gloves of soft black summer suede.

The Story of Baseball

1-CRICKET AND ROUNDERS

In the British museum is a leather-covered ball which was dug up in Egypt. This ball, fairly well preserved, is believed to have been tossed around by Egyptians of 3,000 years ago, or more.

girls in Stratford-on-Avon. We used a soft rubber ball, and could run when he batted it in any direction. When a player picked up the ball, he would throw it at the runner, trying to put him out by hitting him with it while he was between bases.

That method of playing rounders has been known in England for more than a century and a half, and it still is followed in some contests. Almost 50 years ago, however, "official" rules were made for games between regular teams, and these rules called for changes. The most important ones were the use of a hard ball, and a rule that a person should not be counted out if hit by a ball.

Among the other official rules which were made for rounders are these:

Ten players on each side.
A game to last three innings.
Every player to bat during each inning.
A player is out if he bats a ball which is caught on the fly or after the first bounce, or is tagged with the ball while running between bases.
Rounders is more like baseball than cricket, but there are many ways in which it is different from baseball. Tomorrow we shall take up early days of baseball on our continent.

Grip used while bowling a "googly" in cricket.

Old Egyptian pictures of people throwing balls give us further proof that ball games were played in their country long ago. We also know that the Greeks and Romans played ball, but all the ancient games were different from baseball of today.

Going back in English history, we find two games which in some ways were on the order of baseball, though not just the same. I am thinking of "cricket" and "rounders."

An early form of cricket, called "club-ball," was played 700 years ago. Cricket today is Great Britain's most popular outdoor sport.

In cricket a hard ball, about the size of a tennis ball, is struck by a cricket bat, which might be called a "cross" between a baseball bat and a paddle. A cricket match may last three days, and hundreds of runs may be made by each side.

During a visit to England, I played rounders with some boys and

Lead to Your Partner's Suit Whenever Possible

BY ELY CULBERTSON
(Copyright 1937, By Ely Culbertson)

When your partner has bid a suit, and you have a five card or longer suit of your own, you should choose between the two suits on the basis of the rule of X plus 1, as follows:

1. Determine how many stoppers declarer's side probably has in each suit. You can estimate the strength of your partner's suit according to whether he bid it at the level of one, two, or three. In your own suit, unless it is of a solid nature (K Q J x x) you usually should assume that declarer has at least two stoppers. 2. Count the number of entries you hold and estimate the number of entries your partner probably holds by his bid. 3. Apply the rule of X plus 1 to both suits, and open the suit which is more likely to be established. Remember that the opening lead may be counted as one entry in either case. 4. If you estimate the two suits to be of about equal strength, you usually should open your partner's suit, since it may be stronger than you anticipate.

Select Your Makeup by Your Eyes

BY ELSIE PIERCE

THAT'S the theory of a well-known purveyor of Beauty... match your make-up to the color of your eyes.

By way of explanation, we are told that matching or harmonizing make-up to the color of one's hair is too confusing for there are any number of blondes with dark skin and brunettes with "blond" skin. As a matter of fact, I do agree that if the hair is taken into consideration when selecting make-up, it should be a secondary consideration, not the primary factor by any means.

Further, the contention is that matching make-up to the color of one's skin is too indefinite and too difficult for the average lay person. The eyes (we're still quoting the theory) are our personality color.

"Nature has given every woman a personality color... a color definitely related to skin and hair pigmentation, a color influenced by factors of heredity, a color that never changes after the first few months of your life. It's the color of your eyes."

In the matter of make-up, I have always felt that you can never tell "I'll try, but in this case of matched eye make-up it need not be an expensive trial so it is by all means worth the little experiment (which may turn out to be such a success, it won't be termed experiment at all).

There's this to be said for the entire idea. What is woman's most potent, most alluring feature? Her eyes. Enhance the eyes and by the same means you enhance the entire face. Add sparkle and interest to the eyes and you light up the entire face.

That is one reason why I like the idea. I know how important the right color accent is to the eyes. I know how much deeper, bluer, more beautiful blue eyes can be with certain shades of blue. I know that hazel eyes can be made to look blue or gray or even depending upon the color accenting them. I know how much more alive brown eyes look with a touch of orange reflected in them.

There's another virtue to the eye-matched make-up plan. The various components of the make-up ensemble—rouge, powder, lipstick, mascara and eyeshadow are harmonized, the one with the other and all guess work is eliminated. There's also enough provision for harmonizing powder to skin tone (which I feel is of primary importance). Darker powder is to be added as the skin suntans, for instance. Eye make-up should certainly take its color key from the color of the eyes themselves. The rest ought to prove an interesting enough experiment. Why don't you try it?

My complete new booklet "Reduce by Exercise" (booklet 302) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address to the Bell Library, care of this newspaper, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y.

I led a diamond from the dummy. The queen finesse lost, however, and later there was no way to avoid the loss of two heart tricks, for the contract's defeat.

I do not wish to imply that success might have been achieved against the very best defense, but I do feel that declarer did not give himself the best chance. On ruffing the second club, declarer should run off four spades, ending in dummy. West undoubtedly would discard his three clubs, but on the fourth round might well decide to let go a heart instead of a diamond. If he did, the following play probably would prove effective:

A heart to the nine spot, which West would win with the jack. West then would have to select an exit card. A diamond obviously would go into declarer's tenace. A low heart would permit declarer to cash the ace and throw West back on the lead with the heart king for a forced diamond return.

Thus, declarer could have maneuvered to put West in the position where only the return of the heart king would defeat the contract. Of course East could scotch this coup by putting up the ten or queen of hearts on the first heart lead, from dummy, but how many players in East's position would play any card but the eight spot?

Lists Causes of Fears Of Bridegroom in Marriage

BY DOROTHY DIX

It is a matter of common observation that at every wedding the bridegroom is a hundred times more scared than the bride. He, pallid and haggard, staggers to the altar on frozen feet and knees that threaten to give way under him. She, radiant and triumphant, sweeps grandly down the aisle with the expression of the cat that has just eaten the canary.

Many reasons have been suggested for this attitude of the bridegroom. One is that he is crushed with humiliation at perceiving that he is of no importance at the function, and the only way he happens to be there is to furnish an excuse for the white satin and orange blossoms, the ornate bridesmaids and the champagne. That, of course, explains the mystery in part, but the real reason the bridegroom is jittery is because he suddenly realizes the awful, the terrifying, the appalling fact that he doesn't know anything on earth about women.

And here he is making a contract to take and keep until death shall then part one of the creatures about whose disposition, manners and habits he knows as little as he does of the fauna of the jungle, and with which he feels himself as little fitted to deal as he would with lion taming. He doesn't know what she likes to eat and whether to feed her on bonbons or accustom her to a diet of plain bread and butter. He doesn't even know how to domesticate her, and whether it is better to pet her and humor her along or to treat her roughly.

So it is no wonder that the poor bridegroom is all a-tremble as he regards the magnitude of the task he has undertaken and whose difficulties all the disgruntled husbands exaggerate to him. But he need not be, for in truth women are simple and primitive creatures, who are ruled through their emotions; who can be easily managed and taught to jump through the hoop and roll over and play dead and eat out of the hand of any husband who will spare their fur the right way and reward them with a few pats on the head.

So to the prospective bridegroom I would say: Get off on the right foot in marriage. When you bring your little pet home and put her in a cage, put on a loud front. Don't let her see that you are afraid of her. Be good and tender and kind to her, but don't let her get the mastery, or else you will be a poor henpecked husband, who is scared to say his soul is his own the balance of his life.

Answer: Yes. Until a trick has been quitted a player may require the others to specify which cards have been played from their respective hands.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

THE GROOM'S FAMILY AND THE WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Post: I am the groom in this case, writing about a situation which both my family and I are very much worried about, because we don't want to do the wrong thing. I am engaged to a girl who has practically no kin; in fact her invalid father is her only relative. On the other hand, I have sisters and brothers and a family that is comfortably well off and all only too willing to do more than their share in this wedding. But my fiancée is proud. Her life has not been easy and she is quick to feel that others' generosity is prompted by pity. Mother would like to take the place of her mother so far as possible, and dad would like to assume the expense of giving us a nice wedding. My fiancée is employed near my home and has not lived where she was brought up for many years. Her friends are my friends. Couldn't my family go ahead with arrangements, sending invitations too, just as they would do were one of my sisters marrying?

I want to make sure about the good taste of such a plan and about how much we may do before broaching the subject to her. She thinks now that we are just going away somewhere to be married alone and I wish instead that we might remember our wedding day as one which included family and friends and a bride in white and a veil. Of course you understand I am willing to go away if it would be better. What do you think?

Answer: Unhappily this is one of those very situations which convention makes difficult. Your fiancée has been known to your parents for many years, or if her mother was an intimate friend of your mother or her father of your father, or if she is an intimate friend of your sister, this puts a different interpretation on the convention which does not permit the groom's family to assume the wedding expenses particularly when the family has only lately known the bride. In other words, to a girl who is intimately proud, it would, I think, make her feel in some way, the same position as the "beggar maid" of King Cophetua. But surely you could have a very small church wedding, couldn't you? The bride would invite your family and those friends nearest to you both, verbally. (Announcements should be sent in the name of her father.) She could wear a very simple white dress and veil bought by herself, and a big bouquet given her by you, and even though the "decoration" of the church belongs to the bride's family, there could scarcely be impropriety in your sending flowers for the altar. But this is about all you can do—unless your parents might perhaps contribute to the simplest possible refreshments, such as wedding cake and fruit cup, served in the parish house after the ceremony.

In other words, the question of leading him up the aisle, the impropriety of wedding expenses which the bride herself obviously could not have afforded. As soon as you return from your wedding trip your family can give your wife anything that their means permit. Your mother could have a big reception for her (and you) and she could wear the most lovely and becoming white clothes that could be bought. And in the evening she could wear her wedding dress with a diadem in her hair instead of a veil.

My Neighbor Says—

All pea vines except the very dwarf kinds are better for being supported, and of course supports are absolutely necessary for such tall kinds as telephone, which sometimes climb six feet in the air. Brush is the ideal support, although strings or even chicken wire will answer. Don't overlook the fact that your pea vines need something to climb on when they are small. If you have some good, tall brush, cut off the tops and place them on the ground close to the rows. Medium tall peas can be supported by brush laid on the ground, but for the very tall varieties you will need to have the brush set in the earth.

Preserves of all kinds, more especially if they are in glass bottles, should be stored in a dark place. They quickly deteriorate in flavor if kept in a light place.

New London Girls Beat Little Chute In Softball Game

Invaders Rally in Sixth Inning but Lose Tilt By 10-8 Score

New London—A sixth-inning rally by the Little Chute girls team fell short and the New London Bumps Bowlbys Candy girls won out, 10 to 8, in a softball game at the city ball park yesterday afternoon.

The New London girls plan to play a Greenville girls team at Greenville tonight for practice in preparation for the Oshkosh Winnebago girls who will invade the local field tomorrow night for a game under the lights.

Several new players have joined the girls group and showed in the game yesterday. Many of the regulars were absent with only nine girls present to fill out the team.

Evelyn Steidl, daughter of Charles Steidl of Stephenville, has taken the shortstop berth and has earned a reputation for hitting. Yesterday she started the first inning spree of the New London girls with a 2-bagger and then in the second inning hit a home run to give the team a 1-point edge, 5 to 4. Alice Babcock of Northport has qualified as third baseman.

Mary Dawson tossed for the candy girls yesterday and allowed 11 hits, walked four and fanned four. Stella Fenton is the regular catcher. Helen Koehn worked for the Little Chute girls and allowed the same number of hits but failed to earn a strikeout.

His Homer

Mabel DeYoung counted a home run in the fifth inning when the candy girls added four more runs to lead 9-4. The invaders connected for six singles in the sixth and converted them into four runs and threatened to pass up the New London team but a couple of good catches retired the side and they were held scoreless the last inning. M. Schumacher's triple and Margaret Koehn's double featured the second inning sprint of the visitors.

Licenses Granted To 18 Taverns at Council Meeting

Several Increases in Pay Voted in Clintonville Street Department

Clintonville—Licenses were granted to 18 taverns in the city of Clintonville at an adjourned meeting of the council Friday evening. Class B retail licenses for taverns here cost $100. Other licenses granted were to Gilbert Pelschow for selling fermented malt beverages, the fee of which is $50; pharmacists licenses at $10 each were granted to Richard Milbauer and Harold Oik; a fermented malt beverage wholesale license at $25 and Class A retail at $10 were granted to Gilbert Buckbee.

H. A. Brooks appeared before the council in protest to sewer assessments on lots owned by him on Sixth street, a 323-foot frontage. Mr. Brooks offered to deed the land to the city if it will pay the special assessments and the taxes on the property since he has acquired it. No action was taken on the matter.

Alderman John Tarty brought up the question of repairs to the Main street railroad crossing. The committee was instructed to confer with the district superintendent of the Chicago and North Western Railroad company in regard to the repairs.

A petition for a street light at McKinley and Franklin streets was referred to the water and light commission.

Pay Increases

Several increases on monthly pay were granted to workers in the street department. Lewis Allen, street commissioner, who received $100 plus $10 for car expenses, will get a total salary of $125; two street sweepers were raised from $75 to $80; and two truck drivers from $85 to $100. City laborers were recently raised here from 35 to 40 cents per hour, while skilled labor was increased from 40 to 45 cents.

Max Stieg, general chairman of the golden jubilee celebration to be held in Clintonville July 3, 4 and 5, gave a resume of the three-day program as arranged by his various subcommittees. He also asked the council to assist the committee financially in case the funds solicited from advertising and from business places are not sufficient to meet the expenses. The aldermen voted to comply with Mr. Stieg's request.

Carl Fischer, 33, janitor at the Clintonville armory, was injured there Friday evening when he fell about 15 feet from a ladder on which he was working. At the conclusion of the concert by the Capital University Choir of Columbus, Ohio, Fischer climbed up the ladder to take down a loud speaker when the ladder slipped throwing him to the floor. He struck his head and was unconscious for about fifteen minutes. The injured man was taken in the ambulance to the Clintonville Community hospital for an examination and X-rays. These revealed no fractures and no internal injuries, but Mr. Fischer will remain at the hospital for about three days because of bruises and shock.

William Rindt, 42, of Embarras, recently fractured both heels when

Judge Scheller to Preside Over Shawano County Court

Waupaca—During July and August, Judge A. M. Scheller will preside over Shawano county court as well as . . . Waupaca, while Judge F. A. Jacek is on his vacation. On July 7 Judge Scheller will conduct a hearing of the claim of Dr. E. C. Stubenvoll against the estate of H. C. Meyer, an affidavit of prejudice against Judge Jacek having been filed.

O. C. Lecan, Iola, has filed claims against the estate of Simon M. Myhre for services and wages he claims are due him while cashier of the Bank of Iola. The estate, represented by the administrator, Irving T. Knutson, has filed objections through the attorneys for the estate Browne and Browne, claiming their demands outlawed. The hearing will be before Judge Scheller, June 24. Lecan is asking $12,011 of the $150,000 estate.

Another claim has been filed by Flora Dell Smith, Long Beach, Calif., niece of the second wife of Mr. Myhre. Her claim totals $10,786.50. Hearing has been set for June 28.

The appointment of appraisers for the William H. Hatten estate will be announced by Judge A. M. Scheller within a few days. While it is customary to appoint but two, Judge Scheller says that because of the size of the estate and the amount of inheritance taxes involved, three will be named.

Kaukauna 3, Manitowoc 1.

Kaukauna regained undisputed possession of first place in the Northern State league last night when it ousted Manitowoc from a first place tie, 3 to 1. The game was an almost perfect exhibition and was played in a trifle better than an hour and a half to the tune of popping light globes in right field. Two Rivers was idle and took second place while Manitowoc and Little Chute tied for third. Little Chute lost to Green Bay, 3 to 2. Kimberly won from Oshkosh, 9 to 0, via the forfeit route. Oshkosh arrived with only four players, went to Menasha to pick up a couple more and at 3 o'clock, 30 minutes after the game was announced, still didn't have enough and the forfeit was announced. A Kimberly player then joined the Indians and a practice game was played. Spectators asking their money back were given it. A league meeting is to be held this week to solve the Oshkosh problem.

KKAUKAUNA—The Electric City Brewers defeated Manitowoc 3-1 here last night, scoring runs in the first, fifth, and seventh innings on the Shipbuilders' errors. Vils, right fielder, came in with two of the Brewers runs. When Rosinsky fumbled his grounder in the opening inning, he got to second and then scampered home on Powell's single. He scored again in the fifth after getting to the first sack on a fielder's choice and home on another single by Powell and an error by Schoepke. Powell gained second on Gray's error and tried to steal home, but was caught at the plate, the decision raising protests from the Brewers.

Van Drasek brought the third run in the seventh. He batted out the only extra-base hit of the evening and then reached home plate when Krauss couldn't handle Carvenough's blistering drive. Manitowoc's one run came in the fifth inning. Zigmund got to first when Eggert dropped his line drive, advanced to second on McCambridge's sacrifice hit, and scored on Krauss's single. The next man up, Vils, hit a high fly to vills. The outfielder snagged the ball and caught Krauss at first for the only double play of the evening.

Carvenough, Brewers hurler, held the Shipbuilders to six hits and fanned seven of them. Schoepke yielded eight hits and whiffed three.

In the first inning, Krauss, who hit three home runs in a game here

YEAH, SEYMOUR. YEAH!

If you don't think they take their baseball seriously up at Seymour just take a squint at the picture above showing the feelings of some of the women followers of the team. Seymour had just pulled itself out of a tight spot yesterday when the picture was taken and the faces of the fans register their delight. The photographer promised he wouldn't reveal the name of the most enthusiastic woman but if you recognize her, all right. At the right, Wurdinger is rounding third base to score Seymour's last run in his 5-0 victory over Bonduel. Wurdinger was safe on an outfield error and scored on another. (Post-Crescent Photos) oil remained in first place alone by virtue of a 15 to 3 win over Oconto Falls.

Both hurlers allowed five rather scattered hits. Bauers fanned five and his opponent whiffed three. Bauers walked one and Raasch none but the latter hit one batter.

Seymour scored two runs in the second frame. R. Puls started things with a single and Gerz sacrificed him along. Hammer singled and then Al Bauers strode to the plate and dumped an infield roller which saw him retired at first base as R. Puls crossed the rubber. Vande Walle followed with a single to chase Hammer across the rubber.

The final Seymour run came in the eighth. With two away Wurdinger lofted to R. Peterson in center but he played the ball too easily and muffed it and Wurdinger ended up on second base. Then R. Puls came up and lofted to left and E. Peterson repeated his brother's stunt and Wurdinger leaped it for home to register.

SHIOCTON CORPS, 7-5
Greenville—Greenville Merchants dropped a 7 to 5 decision to Shiocton in the Outagamie County league here Sunday afternoon as Cliff Burton, Appleton, made his first appearance on the mound. He was touched freely in the first frame but thereafter settled down and hurled good ball. Errors in the sixth and seventh led to his downfall. He fanned 11 and walked 2.

Lathrop and Miller toiled for the Shiocton team. Lathrop fanned nine and Miller four while Lathrop walked three and Miller one. Miller was belted hard in a brief truce of the Toledo mound in the opener, divided pitching chores with Trout in the second, and the Brewers collected but nine safeties.

Minneapolis fared well against Indians, winning the opener to 3 behind Grabowski's seven-hit hurling, bunching seven singles and five extra base knocks with two errors to win in the second game when he had three runs when the game was called because of the six o'clock Sunday closing law.

No Loser Ever Trained At Grand Beach, Mich.

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
C HICAGO—(P)—Those are our dogs you hear barking... To cover all angles of the Braddock-Louis fight you have to gad about in four states... Headquarters are in Illinois... Braddock's camp is in Michigan... To get there from Chicago you have to travel in Indiana... Louis is up in Wisconsin... Bow, wow, and oh, oh... Betting around the loop today was 24-3 to 1 on Louis, but you had to look twice to see any dough laid on the line...

Here's a red hot fight tip: No loser ever has trained at Grand Beach, Mich., and among those who have dropped there are Sammy Mandell, Tommy Gibbons, and Benny Ross... So many Jerseyite

The Braddock camp at Grand Beach probably is the only fight camp on record in which three world's champions worked out and a fourth was introduced on the same afternoon... Braddock, Barney Ross and little Sixto Escobar, king of the hantamweights, did their stuff the other day... Freddie Steele took the bow... Braddock has been taking long walks in the woods with a priest... The cop at Grand Beach, who wants to see you into the jug if you come in at more than six miles per hour, is the double of old Pop Foster, who manages Jimmy McLarnin.

Odd and ends: University of California at Los Angeles wants Earl Martineau, former Minnesota star, as assistant for head coach Bill Spaulding... Bud Shaver, sports editor of the Detroit Times, is showing everybody the M. A. degree he got from the Detroit Institute of Technology... Hya doc?... Eddie Long, in charge of press arrangements at the Braddock camp, made a fortune managing such stellar battles as Sammy Mandell, Bud Taylor and Chicago's left handed lightweight, old Charlie White... From Kenosha comes a double against sparring mates who featured the Braddock style—a long left and a good right... Take it or leave it... Our four star fight special will be in all editions tomorrow.

Brewers Divide Sunday Bill With Toledo Mud Hens

Association Fans Thrilling At Battle for Bat Honors

CHICAGO—(P)—American association fans are getting their money's worth in thrills this season.

In addition to the ding-dong battle being waged by Minneapolis and Toledo for the league lead, two young Columbus outfielders are staging a private "war" of their own over the circuit's hitting leadership.

Johnny Rizzo of the Columbus club held the hitting lead for several weeks, but his outfield teammate, Enos Slaughter, now has taken over the top spot with an average of .395, aided by a three-out-of-seven performance yesterday as Columbus rapped a double bill to Kansas City. Rizzo's average now is .386 for the season.

The Kansas City victories over the Red Birds were by scores of 10 to 5 and 15 to 8.

Louisville and St. Paul divided, the Saints taking the first game 7 to 3 even though being out hit 10 to 15 in the nightcap. Dick Bass held the Gaby Street men to eight hits as the Colonels collected 16, scoring nine runs in the opening frame to win, 12 to 3.

Toledo stayed hot on the heels of Minneapolis by whipping Milwaukee in the second game of a double bill 6 to 2 after losing the first 13 to 2. Eighteen hits were driven out off Sullivan and Garland as the Brewers took their victory. Sullivan, who had been belted hard in a brief truce of the Toledo mound in the opener, divided pitching chores with Trout in the second, and the Brewers collected but nine safeties.

Minneapolis fared well against Indians, winning the opener to 3 behind Grabowski's seven-hit hurling, bunching seven singles and five extra base knocks with two errors to win in the second game when he had three runs when the game was called because of the six o'clock Sunday closing law.

Weekend Games Jolt Standings In Major Leagues

Warneke, Diz Dean Give Cards 2 Wins; Yanks Pound Chi Sox

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer
A LL in all, mates, it was a big weekend in baseball.

The standings in both leagues changed like the "gold" in a dollar watch.

Here was the set-up:
The Cardinals were in second place in the National league. Lon Warneke pitched a four-hitter and Dizzy Dean a five-hitter to belt the stingless Bees 6-2 and 9-1 yesterday and turn the trick. Dizzy's doings made him the first ten game winner of the year, and Ducky Medwick walloped homer No. 15.

The Giants, still minus the winning ways of Realistic Carl Hubbell, sagged to third place, although they won their single game from the Reds yesterday, 4-3, with the aid of the Bees.

The year's top crowd, 68,933, packed Yankee Stadium to see murderers' row pound the White Sox all over the lot and win twice, 6-4 and 7-4, with the aid of five home runs, including No. 15 for Joe DiMaggio. Lefty Gomez turned in a six-hitter in the opener and Monte Pearson made his first start after a month-long layoff in the nightcap. After extending their winning streak to six straight, longest in two years, by taking the double bill opener from the Indians, 5-2, the Red Sox dropped the nightcap, 6-7, but still aimed fourth place.

Tigers Floor Muck
Detroit's Tigers took advantage of tight throwing by Elden Auker and Tommy Bridges and flogged the floundering Athletics in a pair, 6-3 and 8-1.

This twin whipping dropped the A's into a last-place tie, as the Browns were unable to do much. Both Wes Ferrell and lost, 5-3, in their single game with the Senators. It was three straight for Ferrell since he traded his Red Sox uniform for the Nat special.

After spending a day in the National league cellar, the Phillies decided it wasn't what they wanted, and not only climbed out again, but advanced all the way to sixth with a 6-5 conquest of the league-leading Chicago Cubs. The victor hoster, the Phils past both the Reds and Bees, and cut the Cubs' pace-setting margin to one slim game.

It was Van Mungo to the rescue again as the Dodgers split with the Pittsburgh Pirates. After dropping the opener 4-2 to Joe Bowman's effort, elbowing the Brooklyn lead off on Red Lucas in the nightcap, and then had to call on their fireball ace to save the situation and a 4-2 decision.

Marion Brewers Cop From Embarrass, 3-0

Marion—The Marion Brewers showed their superiority over the Embarrass nine of the Pigeon River circuit by handing them a 3 to 0 beating here Sunday evening.

Marion hurler, allowed only three scattered hits. Embarrass had five errors to two for the Brewers. Raasch of Embarrass and Walk of Marion were the leading hitters with two safeties apiece.

Jim Braddock and Joe Louis to Clash for Title Tomorrow

Promoters See No Trouble Naming Fight Officials

Ticket Sales Indicate Financial Success; Find Little Wagering

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY
CHICAGO.—(U)—The world's heavyweight championship fight between James J. Braddock and Joe Louis, set for Comiskey park, home of the Chicago White Sox, tomorrow night, moved toward its climax with amazing calm today.

There were no arguments about the selection of a referee, no last minute legal attempts to halt the contest, no ticket speculating scandal and very little—if any—wagering on the outcome.

Yet the bout, scheduled for 15 rounds or less, will be assured of financial success, with indications pointing to an attendance of 60,000 and gate receipts of from $700,000 to $750,000. Out of this sum will go 20 per cent to the two boxers, perhaps $300,000 to Braddock, who only a Principals—James J. Braddock, world's heavyweight champion, and Joe Louis, Negro challenger.

Place—White Sox baseball park, Chicago.
Time—Tuesday night, June 22, between 8:30 and 9 p. m., central standard time, unless weather conditions prompt a change; preliminaries begin at 6:30; if a postponement is necessary, the bout will be held Wednesday night.
Conditions—15 rounds to a decision by referee and two judges, with "four" rule in force; referee to be named at moment principals enter ring.
Estimated attendance and receipts—$500,000 to $600,000 and $700,000 to $750,000 at prices ranging from $3 to $27.50; seating capacity of park reduced from 80,000 to 75,000.
Fighter's share—Braddock to receive 50 per cent of receipts, Louis 17 1/2 per cent, including 10 per cent of picture rights after deduction of federal and state taxes.

few years ago was on the federal relief rolls, and possibly $100,000 to Louis, who only four years ago was a $5 a day automobile factory worker in Detroit.
Expect Half Million Gate
Various estimates placed the cash in the strong box of Mike Jacobs, co-promoter with Joe Foley, at between $500,000 and $600,000, depending upon who says what.
All the ballyhoo about Louis being sluggish in his drills and the champion being too old to retain his title against the dynamite laden fists of the 22-year old Negro have failed to stimulate betting.
Louis probably will enter the ring a favorite at odds that may be 3 to 1, one of the few times a challenger ever has become a favorite over the heavyweight champion, and the only time a challenger went into the ring in a heavyweight bout at such long odds.
Braddock left his training camp at Grand Beach, Mich. today, motoring to Chicago to remain in seclusion until time to weigh in at noon Tuesday at the auditorium theater.
Louis intends to remain in his palatial quarters on the shore of Lake Michigan six miles south of Kenosha, Wis., until coming to Chicago tomorrow to jump on the scales. He figures to weigh about 198, with Braddock coming in at 196. The champion trained at Grand Beach for 30 days, but actually he has been conditioning himself for three months, first at Stone Lake, Wis., and then at the quarters he left today.
Braddock was in high spirits as he brought to an end his long training seige and predicted he would win by a knockout in eight rounds. "I have never been afraid of any fighter," he said, "and Louis holds no terrors for me. I will fight him every step of the way. If I'm defeated it will not be through fear. I will not quit. It will take a clean knockout to keep me down for the count. Then I will be a knockout tomorrow night, but it will be Louis, instead of me, who will be counted out."

Braddock Superior Boxer
If Braddock goes he'll go early, according to the experts, and the longer he stays the longer and sadder the night will be for Louis, with the prospect that Braddock, rated as the superior boxer, may be in there at the finish to get the decision.
Braddock's admirers figure that what he needs most to whip Louis is a pair of legs to stand up, since he'll go into the ring untrained. For the fight itself, preparations are complete. The $10,000 ring, shipped here from New York, has been set up over second base on the playing field, and is surrounded by 25,000 rambade seats, none more than 120 feet from the scene of action. The seating capacity has been reduced from 80,000 to 75,000 to avoid waste in construction as the promoters do not figure on a capacity crowd.
More than 600 press reservations have been made, a record for a championship fight.
Dozens of special trains began to arrive today and will come in for the next 24 hours. Airplane lines dispatched their ships in "sections" to accommodate the visitors, who are figured to spend upwards of $5,000,000 in their stay here.

Port Robertson, 1937 captain of the University of Oklahoma wrestling team, has been named assistant mat coach at the University of Michigan.

Woodward Calls Lund A "Natural Halfback"

(SPORT EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the tenth of a series on athletic training by Dave Woodward, training officer of the Green Bay Packers, National professional football champions.)

My seventh All American, Frances (Pug) Lund, was selected All American halfback, and was coached by Bernie Bierman.
Pug, who is known all over the United States as the outstanding player of his time was what I would call a "natural" halfback. For instance, he played four years at halfback in high school, at Rice Lake, Wisconsin, which is his home, and the usual three years of competition at the University of Minnesota, winning his letter on each occasion. He was all-conference halfback in his sophomore and junior year and won the conference

SOX DEFEAT LITTLE CHUTE
Green Bay—Johnny Rowe bested Dick Weisgerber and the Little Chute nine of the Northern State league on a wet diamond here Sunday afternoon to give the Green Bay Green Sox a 3 to 2 victory. The game ended a near riot in the last two innings when Little Chute players were ejected from the game. The Sox loaded the bases in the second, but Weisgerber bore down and pitched himself out of the hole. However, the fourth frame saw the Sox taking command. Zuidmuller walked to start the frame and Zigmund sacrificed. Dobkowski doubled and Johnny Rowe came through with singles to score the two runs.
Little Chute came back in the fifth when Wildenborg singled after two men were out. Bob Lamers drove in Wildenborg with a single. In the seventh Green Bay tallied its winning run when Erickson and McClain singled and Dobkowski followed with his second hit of the game to score Erickson. Weisgerber then hurled steady ball to get out of hot water.
Little Chute's big bid for a victory came in the eighth when Ellis, Versteeg and Bonkers cracked singles. Ellis scored, but Versteeg was caught at the plate after hesitating at third before attempting to score. The umpire's ruling on the play caused a howl from the Little Chute players and fans and Versteeg finally was put out of the game by Umpire Sears. Bonkers cracked a finger sliding into the sack on the same play.
Lucassen, the second Little Chute player to be put out of the game by Umpire Sears, left the game in the ninth frame.
Weisgerber gave up 10 hits and the Little Chute players collected 9 safe hits off the offerings of Johnny Rowe. Rowe fanned 12 batters and gave up 1 walk, while Weisgerber fanned 6 and walked 3. Ellis got two doubles and Erickson cracked a two-base hit.

HORTONVILLE LOSES
Hortonville—Greenville Grange defeated Hortonville 10 to 1 in an Outagamie County Baseball league game here Sunday afternoon. The Grange took the lead in the third inning and Hortonville tied the count in the fourth, but three runs in the fifth ended doubt as to the outcome. V. Christianson and M. Brown Bomber Is Satisfied He Will Knock Out Champ

Trainer Jack Blackburn Says Challenger Is at His Best for Bout

BY PAUL MICKELSON
BENSAH.—(U)—The experts aren't satisfied that Joe Louis is ready for James J. Braddock but Joe Louis is.
As he loafed around his Lakeside Villa waiting for the hour he is to get his chance at the heavyweight title, the Brown Bomber and his handlers confessed nothing but supreme confidence of victory despite a series of almost pitiful exhibitions during training.
"I am ready and I am going to be the next heavyweight champion," said Louis. "No one ever won a fight while practicing."
"You'll see a better Joe Louis than ever before," said Trainer Jack Blackburn. "Joe will fight his old fight and have a better defense to boot."

Poor Showing In Last Workout
Blackburn and his camp associates refused to get alarmed over Louis' dismal showing in his final workout yesterday when Tiger Hairston, negro sparmate from Wheeling, W. Va., had the Brown Bomber groggy and bewildered as he hammered him with looping rights to the face. Blackburn halted the attack by ordering time called before the round was completed. He blamed Louis' reeling tactics to the rain that made the ring canvas slippery.
Except for a long walk, loafing was the order of the day for Louis as his mates packed their belongings for tomorrow's get-away. Louis planned to spend the day playing cards—He is some $34 ahead in a poker game—and reading magazines. No one was allowed to visit the palatial home which the Louis entourage rented for $900 for five weeks.
"Don't put any more in the paper what round I'm going to win in," said Louis. "I hope to win some, where between the first and 15th round. 'Course the first would be much better."

CHAMPION BREAKS CAMP
Grand Beach, Mich.—(U)—James J. Braddock broke camp today and moved by automobile into Chicago, where he will defend his world's heavyweight title against the dynamite-laden fists of Joe Louis in the White Sox ball park Tuesday night.
Manager Joe Gould said he would hide the camp away either in a south side apartment or in a suburban hotel until noon Tuesday when Braddock and Louis must appear before the Illinois athletic commission to weigh in.
The champion was in high spirits as he embarked on the last stages of the journey that may bring fame and certainly fortune. He called the camp attendants together shortly before his departure, thanked them for what they had done and promised that when he comes back to Grand Beach—maybe to train for a Max Schmeling fight if it is landed by Detroit—it will be as the heavyweight champion of the world.

Washington Crew Is Picked to Repeat In Annual Regatta

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—(U)—They may occupy adjoining boat-houses on the east bank of the Hudson, and they may be the only west coast entries in the race, but it's more than a mere "good neighbor" policy which makes Carroll (Ky) Ebright, keen-faced California coach, pick Washington to repeat in the four-mile varsity skirmish that features tomorrow's Intercollegiate Rowing association regatta.
"Our neighbors definitely are a better boat now than they were the day they beat us," he said. "Just as definitely, they're the best boat on the river."
Today marked the last stage in the almost unvarying routine of the encamped varsity, junior and freshman oarsmen of the seven competing colleges. Washington, California, Navy, which alternates as second choice for the major race with the Bears, Cornell, Syracuse, Wisconsin and Columbia.
For a week and more it's been up at 8, on the river about 10, lunch at noon, on the river in the afternoon, dinner about 6, to bed at 10, once or twice a movie.
All-England Net Meet Opens Today
Grant May Not Start in Fortnight of Tennis At Wimbledon
London.—(U)—Although Bryan (Bitty) Grant was listed as a doubtful starter, the American delegation of nearly a dozen good players and a few lesser lights was rated as about the strongest collection of players for any one nation at the annual fortnight of tennis at Wimbledon—formally known as the All-England championships—beginning today.
Grant, who caught a severe cold just before leaving the United States with his Davis-Cup teammates, remained in bed as Don Budge led the rest of the American forces into action. He was fortunate enough to draw a bye in the first round.
Budge, top-seeded player in the tournament above the German Davis cuppers, Gottfried Von Cramm and Heinrich Henkel, drew the toughest opposition on today's list. In his first round match he faced Norman G. Farguharson, South African Davis cup player who once beat Fred Perry at Wimbledon.
Frankie Parker did not look for trouble against J. H. Ho of China. Davis Cuppers Gene Mako and Wayne Sabin also faced easy first-round opposition. In the women's division Helen Jacobs, the defending champion, and Alice Marble, United States titleholder, both drew first-round byes.

Neenah—Neenah Merchants won both games of a twin Northern Valley league bill against the Menasha Eagles, 7-6 and 4-2, at Washington park Sunday afternoon.
The victories gave the Neenah aggregation a firm hold on second place in the league. Menasha had plenty of opportunities to cop the first tilt, a 10-inning battle, but lacked the punch to win. Four times during the contest, the Merchants were on the short end of the score but each time battled into the lead on timely hits.
Orv Schultz and Buster Brown engaged in a fine hurling duel and although both teams collected plenty of hits, they were well scattered. Menasha had 8 and Neenah 12. Ken Handler drove in the tying runs in the ninth inning with a smashing double that scored two runners and gave the Merchants their chance to win.
The winning run was scored in the tenth frame on a single by Jerome and a walk to Haufe. Schultz, who had struck out on four previous trips smacked out a single and drove in the run. Gartzke had a home run to feature the hitting in the first game. Jerome had three hits while Beach and Pawlowski collected two apiece for Menasha.
Lacks Punch
Although the second tilt lacked the punch displayed in the first game, both teams showed some good ball with the Merchants coming from behind to win as in the first battle. Menasha scored in the first stanza on two clean hits and scored its final tally in the fourth inning on three bunched singles.
Ken Handler led the batting attack for Neenah by collecting three hits in three times at bat. He accounted for two Neenah runs on a home run and a double. Nadolney led the Menashas with two safe bingles.
Jerome hurled for Neenah and allowed six hits and struck out four men. Rippl, hurling for the Eagles, allowed six hits and struck out four men. The game was shortened to seven innings because of the previous 10 inning fracas.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: A mysterious shot kills attractive Jude Blunshop on a wild stormy night at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. Then a series of strange attacks makes everyone in the marooned household jittery: Mike, the Skipper, his tall, tweedy younger aunt, Aunt Marjorie, stout and grumpy Gay Palmer, Mike's red-headed sweetheart, Higgins, the old butler; William, the chauffeur; Cook, Annie, the maid; even myself. As the second nerve-racking day dawns, the Skipper and I find the body of a gray-haired man, half-way down the bluff.

Chapter 24
AN INSANE GHOST
THERE was a tinkle of glass and I caught M. Farrington as he capered. Neither of the others moved.

"Oh," began Gay, repentant eyes on Michael's face. "oh—"

But we had no time for the sex motif just then.

"Come on, Mike," I said, cutting "Gay look after Aunt Marjorie, will you?"

Armed with a long coil of rope, the servants were waiting in the hall. From the side door we made our way to the bluff. The body lay just as we had left it, the surf mounting steadily higher. There was no time to lose.

"Higgins, you're the lightest. Tie this rope around your waist. Can you tie a decent knot?"

"I don't know, sir." The old man's lips were gray.

I seized the rope, tied it around him. "We're going to lower you down," I said. "Then you untie the rope and put it around him this way. There's no danger. Are you all right?"

"Yes, sir."

We lowered him slowly. The roar of the water was loud in our ears as we waited for his signal. It came, and we hauled. There seemed considerable danger of all three of us tumbling to our own destruction before we could bring our gruesome burden within arm's reach. Between us, William and I managed the last stage of the job. In another two minutes, Higgins was back beside us, wet and trembling but uninjured.

He was staring as if hypnotized at the body, which he had rolled over on its back. Slowly my eyes followed his. Except for the heavy white hair, the man lying at our feet might have been Michael Farrington. William knelt down beside the sodden heap.

"Dead, all right. Who is he?"

Whatever his name, that man was a Farrington. He had Michael's black brows, passionate mouth and chin—Mike's slim hips and broad shoulders. The dark eyes were now glassy and horrible, but they were like Michael's—and the Skipper's. With two servants in the midst of it, we had certainly uncovered a family skeleton. I was obliged to shove Mike violently to move him.

During that short journey back across the soggy lawn, a dozen wild thoughts were teeming in my head. Who? That was uppermost. Michael's brother? A cousin? Uncle? Who? Had Mike known him—a whereabouts—his motives? Mike had been shielding someone. There was no doubt of that. But I would have sworn that the look he bore on that pathetic figure had been one of blank amazement.

Had the Skipper known? She had been hiding something, too. She had suspected something. She had rushed from the house as if she knew just where to go. She—Great God! Was this bundle in our arms the reason for the sudden change in the Skipper? Had this man's hand moved Jude's body? Had he been lying, alert, waiting, under that sheet until—

Family Scene Coming Up
"Where to, sir?" We were at the side entrance.

I looked at Michael, but his back offered no suggestions.

"The game room, William," I said. "We deposited our burden on the billiard table. Michael gave us no assistance. His mute, vacant stare!

only intensified an already unbearable situation. To send the servants away would be to insure the rapid spreading of the news in all directions, but it was unthinkable to keep them there. William's eyes were glowing with excitement, his cheeks flushed. Relieved, I thought, relieved that it's over. But he'll talk—Lord, how he'll talk!

"I'll get a cover for him, sir."

I turned to Higgins. The old man's lips were twitching so badly that I had grave misgivings for the fate of his false teeth. Higgins knew then, whatever it was that Mike and I did not know, and the story was safe with him. In all the terrors of the last two nights, he had not revealed it. I remembered the coffee cups rattling in his hand that first night, and Michael churning, "Higgins, you don't look up to scratch!"

"Will that be all, sir?" William. I could see he was in a hurry to get out to the kitchen with news.

"No, quite, William. Keep your mouth shut. Understand? It will only get the women excited."

"Very good, sir."

It probably wouldn't work, but in any event there was nothing more I could do.

"All right," I said. And Michael and I were alone.

"I have never in my life so heartily wished myself elsewhere. The fuss and fury were over and I was uncomfortably aware of the fact that I was stranded in another man's house where a terrific family scene was impending. Worse than that, my nose was inextricably thrust into the middle of it.

"Well, Mike," I said clumsily, laying an awkward hand on his shoulder, "what can I do?"

For a moment I thought that he wasn't going to answer. Then, "Get the Skipper. Never mind the rest of them. I've got to talk to the Skipper."

I left him standing there, staring into space. If the Skipper had joined the others, how could I possibly get her without bringing the whole hornets' nest down on his ears? But the Skipper had not joined the others. She was sitting in the very spot where I had left her, her head in her hands, and she didn't seem to hear me come in. It took an effort to cross the room.

"Skipper," I said as gently as I could. "Will you come into the game room?"

She raised her head and looked at me. I would have given something for a poker face.

"Yes," she said at length very slowly. "Yes, of course."

At the game room door I tried to get away, but she jumped onto me. "Come in here, too. Jim—if you don't mind."

But He Died Years Ago!

I did mind, very much. But I did as I was told, closing the door carefully after me. Mike came toward her but she ignored him and stepped to the table, where she stood a long time staring at the dead face. I turned to the window blindly. The silence was beastly. I counted broken branches and small sticks scattered on the lawn, dully noted several pieces of brick missing on the terrace, observed that the surf was already washing above the bluff in a fine gray mist.

"Skipper," said Michael's voice. "It was this Norman Farrington."

Michael's father! But he had died when Michael was a baby!

"Yes."

Silence, a thick blanket of it. Was the hammering of surf actually in the room or was all that noise in my own head?

"He was insane?"

"Yes."

I thought, "I could open this window and get out of here." Out of here—

That queer, flat voice again. "How long?"

The other dull voice, "Ever since you were a baby."

I slipped the spring lock on the French window and started to step onto the terrace. A deep cry stopped me.

"Michael! Stop! You must listen to me! You must—"

My eyes were dragged back to 19 Chicago Youngsters Enjoying Outdoor Life at Fresh Air Camp at Neenah

Neenah—From the Bethesda Day Nursery in Chicago which is sponsored by a board of 12 women civic leaders with Mrs. Helen Grenz-bach as president, Miss Frances Deal, former Neenah resident and superintendent of the nursery has brought 19 children, ranging in age from 2 to 8 years, for a vacation at the former Oberle farm near the Neenah High school. Miss Deal, whose mother is Mrs. A. W. Jape, 212 Caroline street, shares ownership of the farm home with two cousins.

The children, sons and daughters of working mothers and fathers, are seeing cows, horses and pigs and brass that can be really played upon, for the first time in their lives.

The program of the camp day is simple. The children arise at 6:45 each morning, dress, and run out to the garage near the house where individual cups, tooth brushes, wash cloths and towels are put to use preparing for the breakfast hour. All morning the children play and after dinner, a 2-hour nap is taken.

Camp Assistants

Assisting Miss Deal at the camp are several members of her own staff from the Chicago nursery: Miss Ellen Albert, general house-keeper and Miss Pasquella Parnaz, kindergarten assistant at the nursery. Three NYA girls from Neenah and Mrs. Elmer Christensen, a volunteer worker complete the personnel.

The Neenah chapter of the American Red Cross loaned Miss Deal cots for the camp and the Neenah School board gave its permission for the use of small tables and chairs in the dining room. From the Neenah W. C. T. U., the camp has received donations of food and clothing and many friends of Miss Deal and other interested individuals in the fund have also donated food and clothing and money for the milk fund. The first day in camp the children consumed 20 quarts of milk.

Organized in 1881

The Bethesda Nursery in Chicago was organized in 1881 by the W. C. T. U. of that city and was the first nursery of its kind in Chicago. Because of insufficient funds, the W. C. T. U. was forced to abandon the project and a board of civic minded Chicago women took it over.

At present the nursery has an enrollment of 45 children with an average daily attendance of 25. The children are from basement homes of 1 of 2 parents. Only infrequently does the nursery accept a child who has both parents living.

City medical service, public school service and clinic service is given the children and some of the funds for the financing of the project are given by the Association of Commerce in Chicago, Council of Social Agencies, Private donations also help to finance the work.

To Close Friday

Miss Deal brought the 19 children from the nursery who were most in need of a fresh air camp program to Neenah. She plans to close the camp Friday.

"We would like to stay longer," said Miss Deal, "but although we have no homesick children, there are lonesome mothers back in Chicago. This is the first time the children have been away from them."

Miss Deal hopes to make the camp an annual event and lengthen the duration of the stay next year.

Play in the boys' junior and senior league started this morning on the library field under the direction of Clifford Kemp.

In the junior division, the Cubs, captained by Don Reichel, were scheduled to meet Roy Peters' Tigers. The senior league was slated to get under way with a game between teams led by George Reichel and Phemal Femal.

The teams in the senior circuit, in which boys from 13 to 16 years of age participate, will have sponsors and the names announced this week.

First-round play in the boys and girls' high school tennis tournament has started and will be completed early this week. Results of the matches that have been played will be announced tomorrow.

Tennis instruction for junior girls will start Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock on the library courts.

Recall Primary Set for Thursday

Nelson and Gantter to be Opponents in Kaukauna Election

Kaukauna—June, the month of wedlock, lazy days and summer's first influence, will be the setting for a primary election in this city. On Thursday, voters will go to the polls to decide which of two men, William J. Gantter or Louis F. Nelson, will oppose Mayor John Niesen in the recall election July 8.

Polls will be open during the regular hours, from 6 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening. This city does not use the primary in ordinary elections, but statutes governing recalls make it mandatory if more than one candidate challenges the incumbent. Mayor John Niesen's name is automatically placed on the ballot.

State Outstanding in F. L. B. Farm Purchases

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—Wisconsin is one of four states which during February, March and April were outstanding in the purchase of farms from federal land banks, according to the Farm Credit administration.

During that period, in the country as a whole, over 1,000 tenants bought farms from land banks. Purpose in compiling these figures, Gov. W. I. Myers of the FCA said, is to determine the number of tenants taking the opportunity to own a farm made possible through sale of federal land bank properties. Twenty-five per cent of the 467 farms sold by the banks during that time were bought by tenants.

Total sales for the St. Paul district, which includes Wisconsin, Michigan, North Dakota, and Minnesota, were 262 in the three-month period. Fifteen per cent of the sales were made to tenants, 54 per cent to tenants on other farms, and 29 per cent to non-tenants, according to Myers.

While you Reduce on New Bread Diet

Based on 3 years of research at leading American Universities

YOU are allowed two slices of Bread at every meal. Bread helps spare your muscles and keep up your energy. You won't be weak and irritable on this new reducing diet.

The Bread Diet has been scientifically planned. It is unlike the extreme diets which cut down too much on energy foods.

Extreme diets may result in nervous breakdown, and should be undertaken only under a doctor's direction.

Bread itself is not fattening. It is not "practically all starch"—but a combination of carbohydrates, and a special form of protein that helps burn up fat while you are reducing.

The Bread Diet cuts to a minimum foods that are practically all starch, the sugars and fats. It gives you the main part of your energy food in the form of Bread.

Go on the Bread Diet—and reduce safely.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

that room, to Michael wrenching himself from her grasp.

Automatically I closed the window as the door slammed behind him.

"Jimmie," said the Skipper hoarsely, "get him back here. I must talk to him."

I put an arm around her. "Better wait, Skipper," I said.

We both whirled at the opening of the door. It was only Higgins, bearing a covering for the body on the table. Without a word he stepped to the table and performed his errand. Turning, he walked over to the Skipper.

"Don't fret, miss," he said. "It's better so," and was gone.

After a while I shook the Skipper gently. "What do you want me to do?" I said. "Shall I tell the others?"

Her sudden grip on my arm made me wince. "No! No! wait until this rotten storm is over and—and help comes."

"But won't they wonder?" I objected. "I told them—"

She was almost shouting. "I know what I'm doing!" Her voice fell. "Sorry. You see, I particularly want to keep Martha from knowing this until—things are more normal. She was—very fond of Norman. Tell Gay anything you like, but keep the servants quiet, and leave Martha to me."

I opened my mouth to say that it would be pretty hard to fool M. Farrington after my announcement in the dining room, but something in the Skipper's face made me close it again. After all, it was none of my business. I could only hope that William would keep his word, and I could keep an eye on Mike.

"Look both these doors, Jimmie," said the Skipper. "and then we'll—we'll eat breakfast."

Breakfast! The word set my teeth on edge; and yet, crossing the room to do as I was told, I was aware of a hollow feeling in the region of my belt.
